CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Have you ever noticed the symmetry of distribution? If your hand contains a singleton, you are almost sure to find another hand with a singleton—if your hand is void, the odds are in favour of a second hand being void. This is a good point to keep in mind both in the defence and in the play of the hand.

Today's hand was played by Mrs. Florence S. Wright of Moline Ill., one of the leading women tournament players of the middle west, at the Tri-City Bridge Club, which meets in Davenport, Ia., where the bridge players of three cities—Moline and Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport—assemble to compete in duplicate play.

♠Q-7-4	♥8-7-3	♦None	♣None
SOUTH

The Bidding

South, the dealer, although he holds seven spades, does not have an original bid and passed. Mrs. Wright, sitting in the West, passed. Third hand bids under the one over one system can be made with a very weak hand. North holds a pretty fair hand, especially with his two suits, so started the contracting with a bid of one club. When holding a six-card and a five-card suit, the longer suit should be bid first.

East doubled and South bid one spade. Mrs. Wright then bid two hearts. North showed his second suit by bidding three diamonds. East jumped the contract to four hearts.

The Play

What would you open with the North hand? Certainly not a spade. Partner could not bid a spade the first time, therefore you cannot depend on him as having a strong spade suit. Your hand is void of hearts.

There is a chance that South may be void of a suit, and naturally the best chance lies in your long suit, therefore the correct opening on the hand would be the king of clubs and when "dummy" covers with the ace, South should ruff with the four of hearts. You will find that the declarer can now make only four hearts, his contract.

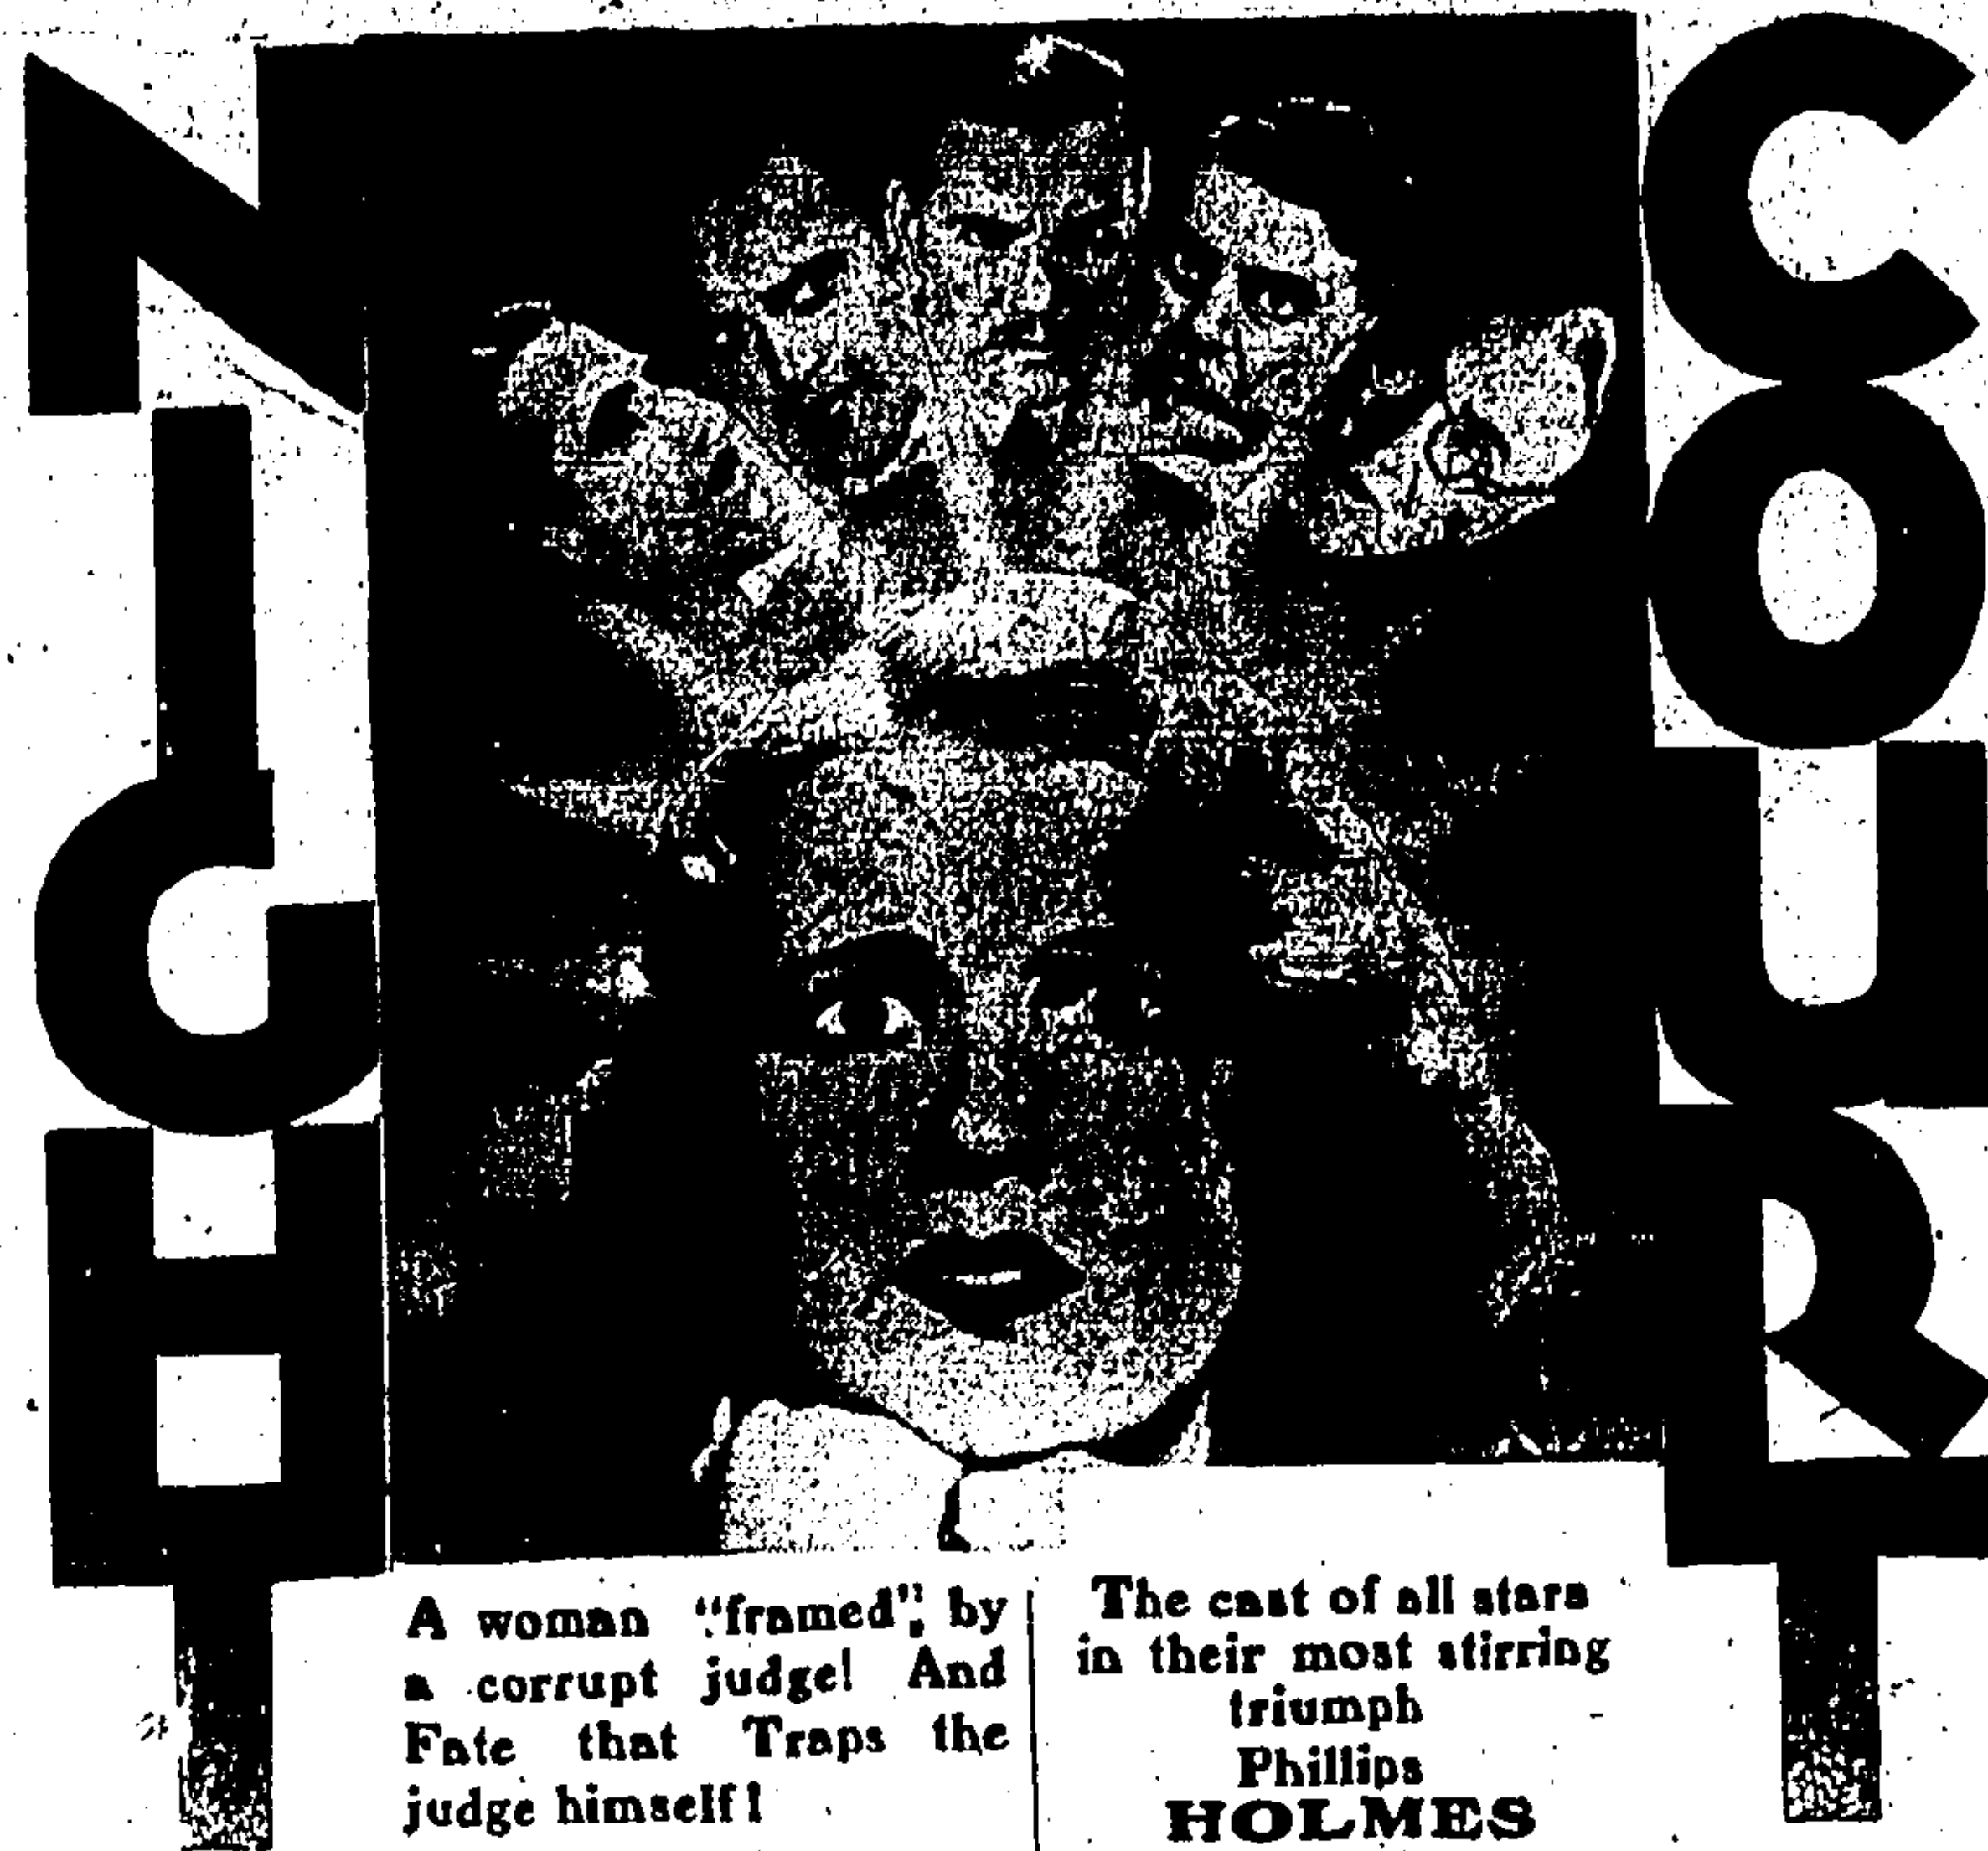

When the hand was actually played, North opened a spade and Mrs. Wright developed a nice squeeze play to make six odd, losing only the queen of hearts.

Queen Mary thought it would be easy to go alone on a shopping trip in London. But the sight of Her Majesty wandering unattended through the shops drew crowds of curious people. Picture shows her being helped through the throng by a policeman.

At a critical point in the Davis Cup when Cochet and Brugnon were threatening to defeat Van Ryn, and Wilmer Allison, the latter slipped. Allison was down, but not out of the play, and raised himself to meet a volley by one of the Frenchmen, safely returned the ball (indicated by arrow), and sprang to his feet.

On trial for his life in Miami, Captain William N. Lancaster, British flyer, here is shown as he appeared smilingly in court. He was acquitted of murdering Hayden Clarke, his rival for the affections of Mrs. Keith-Miller.

Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, well known to American aviation, is shown as she appeared in court in Miami, where she testified in defence of Captain William N. Lancaster, who was accused of killing Hayden Clarke.

Watching the Davis Cup matches in Paris recently were these two former rivals of the tennis courts, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss. Suzanne Lenglen. The American girl, present world's champion, and the French star of a few years ago exchanged reminiscences during the men's matches.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and move into a cheap apartment. Cherry's struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson, also of the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

Cherry and Dan are invited to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed and Cherry starts with Max Pearson. A storm overtakes them and while they are waiting for it to pass he tells her he loves her. They finally reach home, but after that Cherry avoids Pearson.

Brenda Vail, magazine writer, comes to Wellington. Dan meets her and she asks him to collaborate with her on a play. Dan spends most of his evenings at Miss Vail's apartment working on the play. Believing Cherry is lonely Dan asks Pearson to drop in to see her.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Cherry dropped her fare into the box as the street car lurched forward. There was a vacant seat half-way down the car and she made her way toward it. Twice the car jolted and almost flung her into the laps of other passengers. She reached the seat and sank into it.

It was 11 o'clock of a bright September morning. Cherry had shopping to do down town. The yellow house dress, the making of which had caused her so much anxiety, had turned out well. Dixie Shannon had seen the dress and liked it. Now Cherry was on her way down town to buy more material. She was to make another dress for herself and one for Dixie who had agreed to pay $1.50 over the cost of the material for the making.

"It will give me something to do evenings," Cherry had said when she had agreed to Dixie's request. "I'll get yellow for you, too. The same shade as mine or as near like it as I can find."

The shopping was to be done in the basement of Sherman's Department Store. Dixie had directed Cherry to that emporium and she had found there a wealth of bargain goods. Socks for Dan that would have cost 20 cents more anywhere else. Yard goods. Household equipment. The potted foliage plant that looked so well on the window sill.

Going to Sherman's was a pleasant adventure. Cherry leaned back in her seat and looked out at the street. She had no need to hurry today. The apartment had been left in apple pie order. It would be fun to window-shop after she had made her purchases and have a look at the new fall styles.

She noticed that the two women who sat in front of her wore hats of felt.

"I suppose it's time for them," the girl thought, "but somehow I can't realize the summer's over."

Idly she glanced about the car. There were four straw hats and nine of felt. Yes, autumn had certainly arrived. Cherry decided to get out her old brown felt for her next trip down town.

She left the street car and walked the two blocks to Sherman's. The entrance to the large building was swarming with customers and inside the store even more crowded. Cherry saw huge placards that read, "Anniversary Sale," and "Sherman's for Service."

A woman dragging a little girl by one arm jammed her way into the elevator. She crowded Cherry against the wall but it was only for a moment. Then the car stopped and the door swung open again. They had reached the bargain basement.

The crowd about the yard goods counters was larger than Cherry had ever seen but she did not mind. She had plenty of time to linger until her turn to be waited upon.

"Three yards of this yellow," she told the clerk, "and three yards of the pink and white."

The pink and white pattern was very attractive. Cherry thought Dan would like to see her wearing it. She bought thread and some buttons and braid. Instead of taking the elevator she walked to the ground floor.

"And now for the shop windows!" she thought eagerly as she elbowed her way to the street.

There was little to be seen behind the plate glass that fronted Sherman's. Bargains left over from summer and a display of window draperies. Cherry turned and made her way toward Chestnut street. Here was Madeline's exclusive establishment, Stanley's and Logan's—both department stores—and several specialty shops that sought their clients from Wellington's wealthiest families.

As Cherry had expected there were fall dresses, winter coats and hats on display in these shop windows. The colours were rich browns, reds and greens with here and there a lustrous black. They were beautiful costumes made of expensive materials and artfully designed.

"But I don't know why I'm looking at them," the girl thought a trifle wistfully. "Of course I can't afford to buy anything here this fall."

She was standing in front of Madeline's shop admiring a small

Cherry recognized that voice. "Oh, Miss Vail!" she said as she turned. "How do you do?"

Brenda Vail's voice rose in its fluttering way. "What a coincidence! You know I've been thinking of you this morning. Wondering why Dan hadn't brought you to see me again. Now that we've met you simply must have lunch with me."

Cherry tried to decline. She was not quick enough to invent a plausible excuse and the other was insistent.

"We'll go to Stanley's tearoom," she said. "It's quiet there and it seems to be the only place in Wellington where a pot of tea is made properly."

Cherry found herself stepping into an elevator and then emerging into the department store tearoom. Certainly it was quiet here. The floor was covered with soft, dark green carpet. There were buff tables, an attractive background for the Italian furnishings and the tables were gay with bright hued garden flowers. The waitresses, in their trim green and buff uniforms, added a pleasant note of colour.

For a few moments Cherry thought with alarm that she might encounter some of her former acquaintances. She surveyed the room hastily, recognized no one.

A slender girl in black led them to a table near a window. Cherry sat down, facing her companion. Miss Vail looked quite different in street clothes than when Cherry had seen her before. She was dressed in black and white. The closely wrapped black turban showed only an edge of the brilliant titian hair. It seemed to bring out the irregularities of her features. Cherry noticed for the first time that Miss Vail's nose was too large. There were tiny lines suggesting age at the corners of her eyes and the same minute markings on her forehead. Daylight and the startling contrast of the black and white costume were not kind to that face.

Apparently Miss Vail was unaware of this. She consulted Cherry about the order, repeated it to the waitress with several sharp comments and then turned her attention again to Cherry. "And why haven't you come to see me?" she demanded.

Cherry hesitated. She had suddenly become conscious of her worn linen frock and old hat. "I—why I thought you were busy working," she began.

Miss Vail shrugged. "I suppose if you're not interested in creative work you would find it boring. Of course I can't really understand that point of view for to me my work is my life. Still, we must have other interests in common and I was so anxious that we should be friends." She paused as though searching for an "interest" that might be suited to Cherry's mental them quite entertaining. You know at some of the smartest parties in New York they've been going in for simple games."

Cherry replied that she had not looked at a crossword puzzle for several years.

"But how do you spend your time?" the other persisted.

"I cook," the girl said firmly, "and wash dishes and sweep and dust. When I've finished all that there's always mending or sewing or the marketing to do."

"The little housewife!" Brenda Vail gushed. "But I might have known. Of course you're the domestic type. Men of Dan's talent and ability are so often attracted by girls who have led a quiet home-life. And it's so easy to understand! Dan is such a brilliant young man. He has a real future and I know you're not going to stand in the way."

"Stand in the way?" Cherry repeated. "Why, what do you mean?"

Miss Vail said soothingly, "Only that of course he'll want to branch out—broaden his horizons—meet other creative artists and—well, in short, learn to express himself. And you mustn't worry your pretty little head about it. Dan has temperament and it would never do to stifle it!"

"I guess I don't understand much about temperament," Cherry said. "I don't think Dan's being stifled. Of course, I know he's anxious to go to New York."

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, Joan Crawford, thought they'd get away from the pictures by taking a vacation in Europe. But photographers follow the young stars wherever they go, and here you see them as they arrived in Paris from London.

Children—and adults too—require sufficient Vitamin B if they are to enjoy health and vitality. Modern diets are surprisingly low in this important essential to strength and vigor.

That unmistakable "GLOW" of Radiant Health

The strong, sturdy, vitally alive child is the result of a well-balanced diet that contains sufficient Vitamin B. When the diet does not supply enough of this vitamin, Squibb Chocolate-Vitavose will prove a new and extremely valuable diet supplement that increases appetite, aids digestion, adds weight and corrects intestinal sluggishness. It is a rich source of Vitamin B. Children and adults thrive on it and love its delicious and refreshing taste.

SQUIBB Chocolate VITAVOSE

So temptingly delicious many drink it for its rich, appetizing taste alone.

SOME CRITICISED REFORMS

The new political group at Home known as the Empire Party has come forward with sweeping proposals said to be in the joint interest of economy and efficiency. Amongst the ideas put forward is a reduction in the number of M.P.'s by at least 150, reorganisation and concentration of Government departments, the constitution of a Civil Service Board to take over the duties of the Civil Service Commission, functioning of the High Courts throughout the year, abolition of motor-car police patrols, and the employment of convicted persons on partially deferred reward, even in competition with other labour. It is proposed that there should be a unification under one Cabinet Minister of all departments dealing with trade and industry, assistant ministers being appointed for each sub-division. By this method it is claimed that great administrative economies would be effected and efficiency produced by co-ordinated effort for the resurrection of industries. Other amalgamations of Government departments suggested include the Foreign Office and the Dominions Office under one Secretary of State, the constitution of the Treasury as a Ministry of Finance under the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the amalgamation of the Ministry of Pensions, Paymaster-General's department, and all superannuation sections of defence and civil departments.

Regarding the reduction in the number of M.P.'s the area would count as much as population in redistributing seats. It is further proposed that relief for unemployed who are not insured or whose insurance has expired should be at a definitely lower rate than for insured persons, and to be conditional on able-bodied persons of both sexes doing manual physical exercises. Police patrol work, it is suggested, should be done mainly by motor cycle or pedal cycle, and motor-car patrols should be abolished. Point traffic regulating police should be recruited specially from ex-Servicemen, &c., and be under the control of the authority responsible for roads. As might be expected, the proposals have come in for marked criticism, the authors being accused of amateurism and inexperience of practical affairs. One

House of Commons should be reduced by about one-fourth is enough to condemn the scheme. If reform could be undertaken "in a vacuum" much might be said for a smaller Legislature, but anyone who knows its working at close quarters realises that such a proposal would at once arouse the keenest opposition. The suggestion that great economies would result if the number of Ministers were reduced by amalgamation is considered as being equally futile. The salaries of the political heads are the most trifling compared with the total cost of the Departments, and if these were made larger, and the political supervision thereby reduced, expenditure might be increased rather than reduced.

It would appear that the reformers labour under the misapprehension that the salaries of what is vaguely called "White-hall" are responsible for a large proportion of public expenditure. The administrative cost of the State Departments is probably less in proportion to the total expenditure of any comparable private concern. Expenditure depends on policy, and until that is altered by the House of Commons substantial saving is impossible. To point out the increase which has taken place in the staff of the various Departments, and to pay no regard to the increased duties which Parliament has imposed upon them is, to say the least, mere trifling.

Sports or Sportsmanship?

The outstanding feature of the Olympic Games was, of course, the remarkable amount of record breaking witnessed, particularly in the track and field events. Swimming and the women's contests naturally showed many new marks because they are comparatively new competitions. But even in events which have been in world-wide competition for thirty-five years the winner who did not also knock down at least an Olympic record at Los Angeles was considered almost a failure. Out of twenty-three track and field events for men, twenty new Olympic records were set and eleven world's records equalled or exceeded. The visitors seemed to adopt a familiar western habit of refusing to admit that what is is good enough. Probably some credit must go to the almost ideal conditions California provided. But the largest factor, of course, is the increasing amount of preliminary competition which found its final outlet at Los Angeles. The spread of sports, not only into nations but into strata of society which hardly knew them a few years ago, has produced a vast reservoir of athletic talent from which the Olympic Games draw only the quintessence of ability. The number actually in competition at Los Angeles was less than at some earlier Olympiads, but they were only the representatives of an increasing host of athletes whose competitions are every year better organised. Some lovers of sports for their own sake see a danger in this trend toward organisation. They believe it tends to make spectacles of sports and hence to commercialise them. They blame it for excessive specialisation and, excessive emphasis on winning, and say it threatens the genuine amateur ideal. There is value in this warning. Record breaking can be overstressed. It is but a symbol of physical excellence. And the underlying purpose of the Olympic Games is to promote sports as an agency for inculcating those mental excellences comprised in good sportsmanship. But other lovers of athletics believe that sports tend in the main to carry sportsmanship with them, and those who watched the games at Los Angeles probably would agree.

LET US SAY GOOD-BYE TO OLYMPIC GAMES

By JOHN RESSICH

WHEN considering the Olympic Games in this year of grace it is interesting to observe their trend.

It has always been a conviction amongst certain nations that Britain's world-preminence was out of all relation to our actual strength. Ignoring the persistence of character they affected to find it a pretence. They thought so eighteen years ago and we proved them wrong.

Certainly in proportion to the world-influence wielded to-day by this country it can be admitted that the total of our Olympic points appears poor. Having conceded that, let us examine what we are faced with in order to discover if it is reasonably worth our while to participate in future.

The United States of America, with its vast polyglot population and flamboyant patriotism, beset with its determination to "beat the band" at any cost, has set the pace. With one outstanding exception, the nations of Europe, from conviction or example, follow. That exception is ourselves.

However greatly it may suit certain apostles to burke realities, we gain nothing by refusing to see that despite pious hopes to the contrary, the national keynote as sounded by von Bernhardt still persists: war, he insisted is a biological necessity and an extension of policy.

Follow My Leader.

To those who read the signs this Continental post-war cult of athletics is almost entirely encouraged from political motives.

It is a sad reflection on human nature that whenever a body composed of opposing forces decides to agree on similar lines of action, sooner or later one of them goes back on the bargain—the rest is merely a scramble to follow.

No sooner does Europe settle to the hope and even the prospects, however faint, of an era of arranged peace, than the inevitable happens.

Just as a string of tired suburbanites progressing station-wards can be seen suddenly starting to sprint simply because the leading bread-winner, his watch being wrong, and fearing to miss his train, has set off at a gallop, so one perverse mind can destroy the world's peace. All must follow.

Having observed and studied the value in peace and war of our national athletic tendencies and love of sport (did not that clever old man Bismarck observe that we never could have a revolution in this country while the people were so fond of horse-racing) the Continent at large has seized upon "sports-training" as the certain road to supremacy in peace and war.

Retire With Dignity.

Quite two years ago a bankrupt European country voted seventy thousand pounds sterling as a preliminary grant towards the expense of training their team for 1932 Olympic Games. From one end of the Continent to the other the same thing went on.

While admitting the difficulty of defining accurately the precise status of an amateur in any particular game, we all know beyond any sophisticated argument what in the general sense is an amateur.

and when we take this "official" financial grant as an indication of what our handful of competitors had to face, it is time seriously to consider the advisability of clearing out of what has no value or even interest for us and what appears to be a fertile stamping ground for the development of the seven deadly sins.

To-day we can retire with dignity, for, considering the paucity of our numbers and without apology for the difficulties of training, the old country did right well this year, and it is surely propitious to have to appeal for funds in order to send a gallant handful of amateurs to compete against hordes of scarcely-veiled and long-prepared professionals.

We Taught Them.

Make it a confessedly professional show and be done with it. Alternatively (although heaven forbid) follow the example of other nations and let us have a Government grant by means of which we may take a large number of potential representatives from their occupations for eliminating purposes, or—let us retire gracefully now.

We have taught foreigners all they know—except sportsmanship, which they seem congenitally slow to assimilate. Even I am old enough to remember when tennis and football, to mention only two, were almost unheard of on the Continent, while a boxer was as rare as a Chinaman with red whiskers, and the youth of the lesser breeds fell away respectfully from your boyish path in the belief that by virtue of the closed fist we were a nation apart and under the favoured countenance of the Lord. If by specialisation our pupils have been able to produce individuals who excel—why worry?

For at least two centuries we have set the world's standard not only in sport but in things that matter, from personal cleanliness downwards. Our men's clothes for everything and our women's in sport are the envy and despair of the world.

We, the least military nation in Europe, have had our field uniform copied by all countries and the cut of our riding-breeches and boots is the abiding marvel of the age. The list is endless.

Not Our Kind.

So let them assemble to snarl and triumph as they will. International sport is not sport as we know and practise it.

The definite and growing lack of interest in this country over the mere existence of these Olympic Games is the clearest indication of their inevitable extinction so far as we are concerned and I feel I express the conviction of the vast majority of thinking people when I say bluntly that the time has come to leave it to the others with our benevolent good wishes.

THIS BUDGET RACKET

By Edward Kelly, Financier.

This week in Legislative Council the Budget will be introduced.

The Treasurer will be there with the Hon. Colonial Secretary. Bankers, brokers, journalists, and other prominent people will also be there to see what the blow will amount to this year.

We will take our seat and say: "Well, gentlemen, about this chit account of mine. My wife says—"

The Hon. Colonial Secretary (we know it) will interrupt and say, "Hon. Members will notice that the sum of $60,000 has been allotted this year for the Shing Mun scheme."

And we will keep prattling on.

"The tailor said to me, he said, 'Now listen to me! I've been pretty lenient with you!'"

And one of the Unofficial Members will say, "I regret, your Excellency, that increased amounts have not been allotted for road work in the Colony this."

And we'll say, "...We were only saying to the chap who sits next to us in the ferry what a terrible thing it is having your chit account at the hotels stopped just because..."

And then they will all tell us to shut up, and start talking in millions. Then we will produce our list.

Everybody has a list. If they haven't got one, it's only because they are not game to make it up.

We will stand up and read it in a loud, sing-song voice.

"Board and lodging $30. Star Ferry $5. Telephone $10.00."

Yankees Score Five Runs in Twelfth Inning

New York, Sept. 12. While the Yankees have not yet actually won the American League pennant, their victory over Cleveland to-day makes it impossible for them to be overtaken. Cleveland carried the struggle into the twelfth inning, when Cleveland broke to allow five runs to cross the plate.

Washington and Philadelphia won again, Cochrane hitting a homer for the Athletics. A circuit clout by Frederick gave Brooklyn victory over Chicago in the National. Exactly five games now separate the Cubs from the Pirates. Paul Waner scored a home run for the Pirates against the Phillies. Results:

GANDHI'S FAST

unless the said decision is meant while revised, I ask that this letter and my letter to Sh. Samuel Hoare be published. I want public opinion to be affected by my letters. Hence my request for their early publication. I regard the decision I have taken, but as a man of religion I have no other course left open to me."

PREMIER REPLIES.

The Prime Minister, in a reply cabled on September 8th, expressed his sincere regret at Gandhi's letter and proceeded:—"I cannot help thinking you have written it under a misunderstanding as to what the decision of His Majesty's Government as regards the Depressed Classes really implies. We have always understood that you were irrevocably opposed to the permanent segregation of the Depressed Classes from the Hindu community. I also knew that your view was shared by a great body of Hindu opinion, and we therefore took it into most careful account when we were considering the question of representation of the Depressed Classes."

"Whilst, in view of the numerous appeals which have been received from the Depressed Classes' organisations and the generally admitted social disabilities under which they labour, and which you have often recognised, we felt it our duty to safeguard what we believed to be the right of the Depressed Classes to a fair proportion of representation in the Legislatures, we were equally careful to do nothing that would split off their community from the Hindu world."

EQUAL FOOTING.

"You yourself stated, in your letter of 11th March, that you were not against their representation in the Legislatures. Under the Government's scheme, the Depressed Classes will remain part of the Hindu community and will vote with the Hindu electorate on an equal footing, but for the first 20 years, while still remaining electorally a part of the Hindu community, they will receive, through a limited number of special constituencies, the means of safeguarding their rights and interests that we are convinced is necessary under present conditions. Where these constituencies are created, members of the Depressed Classes will not be deprived of their vote in the general Hindu constituencies, but will have two votes in order that their membership of the Hindu community shall remain unimpaired."

CHINESE COURAGE Praised.

WORK OF FLOOD RELIEF COMMISSION

London, Sept. 12. The great resource, organising ability and extraordinary courage of the Chinese technical staff of the Flood Relief Commission, is paid a tribute in a long article in The Times by Sir Hope Simpson, dealing with flood relief in China.

He emphasised the fact that the Commission was hampered in its efforts on the north bank of the Yangtze by bandits, and cites an incident in which a bandit horde in Honan overwhelmed the headquarters of the Commission and carried off its resources in grain and cash, yet when the band retreated, the Commission re-started work with a newly recruited staff.

He estimated that a thousand workmen on the north bank of the Yangtze lost their lives in a month as a result of red raids. The Times, in a leading article on the matter, says that it speaks well for the spirit of the Chinese employees of the Commission who faced perils without flinching. "Indeed, an account of their work and the prevalence of Communism and banditry, in the banditry, in the Yangtze Valley, gives the impression that the Chinese deserve better leadership than the revolution has given them," it concludes.

HOCKEY TRIAL.

SCRAPPY PLAY IN MATCH AT SOOKUNPOO YESTERDAY

Little outstanding form was shown by the players who took part in the third hockey trial held at Sookunpo yesterday, when the team of Probables beat the Possibles by four goals to two. The match on the whole was scrappy, and revealed nothing which might be of assistance to the Selection Committee, the slippery state of the ground making good hockey a difficult task.

The Probables had the better team and gave a superior all-round display to their opponents. G. Singh opened the scoring from a pass, but when the interval arrived the Probables were two goals to one in arrears. They quickly equalised, however, and then took the lead, which they subsequently increased to 4-2.

Friendly Match.

In a friendly game of hockey played yesterday afternoon at the Carline Hill Ground, Radio Sports Club beat H.M.S. Veteran six goals to three. The home team fielded a fair side against the visitors, several regular players giving place to reserves.

For the winners Avtar Singh scored four goals and H. Singh two. Karan Singh and J. Singh played a good game, rendering much assistance to the goal scorers.

RUSSIAN GUARD'S SUICIDE

"UN SOUND MIND" THE VERDICT

Allegations of inconsiderate treatment by superior officers, contained in a letter left behind by D. V. Mikhailovsky a Russian Police guard, who on August 24 committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a service rifle in the Guards Office (converted from the old No. 7 Police Station at West Point) were found to be groundless at a Coroner's inquiry concluded before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. J. R. Brouwer (foreman), E.M.H. Castro, and Fung Yue-chung. A verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind" was returned. Sub-Inspector O'Connor, who was summoned on the morning in question from his quarters on the first floor of the building, said that when he reached the ground floor, he saw several Russian guards grouped at the doorway leading to the large room which was the scene of the tragedy. On entering, he found Mikhailovsky lying on his back on a bed near a window at the west end of the room, fully dressed in European civilian clothing and wearing brown socks and shoes.

Witness attention was caught by a rifle which was lying between the man's legs with the muzzle only two inches from his chin. The magazine was empty and in order to take the weapon from the body witness had to remove the dead man's hands from off the stock. Witness pulled back the bolt and extracted an empty cartridge case.

Wound in Chin.

A large gaping wound was evident under the chin on the right side, while in line with it on the right side of the head above the forehead, was another opening. The right eye was swollen. At the head of the bed on the right side, on the floor, was a pool of congealed blood. On the wall just back of the dead man's head was a hole apparently made by a bullet, splinters of which were found embedded between the mortar of the brickwork.

The body was removed to the Mortuary after the arrival of Mr. William La Bart Sparrow, A.S.P. Lance Sergeant No. E. 6 then handed witness a piece of paper with two keys attached. "After L.S.E. 6 had translated what was on the paper," said witness, "I went with him to his room, where I saw a suitcase, which was not locked, and which, on an examination, I found to contain, just inside on top of some clothing, a letter. It was gummed down, and addressed to L.S.E. 6. I handed it to E. 6 requesting him to open it. He did so, and found it to contain this letter and $25 in Hongkong banknotes. I then requested E. 6 to translate the letter, a copy of which translation is here produced."

Suicide's Record.

Sub-Inspector Portallion, in charge of the Guards Department for a period of two years and seven months, said he first came to know the deceased two days after the general arrival of the Russian guards from Shanghai on enlistment in the early part of 1930. They were quartered at the old Sailors Home, but later transferred over to their present quarters in the old No. 7 Police Station on the latter's removal to the Sailors Home.

These Russian guards were engaged for duty on Empress liners and B. and S. boats, and when ashore their duties were confined to waterfront searching. Mikhailovsky never came under his special attention for any reason, but in September 1930, he applied for sick leave, and when going into hospital did not state the nature of his illness.

Referring to the man's record, Inspector Portallion stated that on three occasions during his two years of service, the man went into hospital, staying there on each occasion for less than two months. His official record was perfectly satisfactory except for a minor offence for which he was cautioned.

Discharged As Incurable.

Ordinarily, if Mikhailovsky had any application to make to the Government, such would have passed through witness's hands before being forwarded to the A.S.P. and the I.G.P. No such application was made by Mikhailovsky when he received his discharge on being invalided on August 22 last—two days prior to his suicide.

He was discharged from service, said witness, as an invalid and as incurable. For every completed year of service, the man discharged would receive an extra month's pay, and Mikhailovsky who had completed two years of service, received $100 as this extra remuneration.

He made no application to be sent to some other place than Shanghai, but had he done so, said witness, he would have been referred to a condition in his agreement

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Sent in the Bus

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—While riding on a bus to-day something happened which could hardly escape my notice, nor any decent person's, for that matter. It concerned a man who has evidently lost all claims of decency from the knights of King Arthur, and who is a supreme example of modern civilization—a civilization of grab and keep.

It was during the hour and the bus was packed with business men, school children and people of all descriptions. The bus slowed down and the person in question jumped on. At the same moment a passenger got up and was presumably on the point of offering the seat to the school children and ladies, when the man, thinking that the passenger was getting off, rushed at and took the seat. He, then, smoked his pipe in the perfect calm and serenity of a well-won battle.

The "gentleman's" manners would require some overhauling if the seat had been genuinely offered and accepted in the face of the weaker sex. Under the present circumstances I am at a loss to describe him. If I had known the "gentleman" personally, I would have given him a piece of my mind gratis, but now I must leave him to the pricks of his own conscience if he has one.

THE CHINESE DRAGON.

this case was Shanghai. Had Mikhailovsky persisted in being sent to some other place, the matter would have to be referred to superior officers.

"I cannot understand," said witness, "why in his letter he said I tried to make his sickness worse."

Official's Consideration.

Witness went on to say that after his first discharge from hospital, and the question of his being invalided was raised, Mikhailovsky was brought by him before the Inspector General of Police, Mr. E.D. C. Wolfe, when Mikhailovsky asked to be kept on, and his application was favourably received by the official interviewed. Mr. Wolfe had then thought that Mikhailovsky might profit from a spell of sea-duty, in view of his ailment, and for four months afterwards, Mikhailovsky did regular ship duty.

It was stated that the $25 found in the suitcase represented all the monies found in the suicide's belongings.

At the close of the evidence, the Coroner in reviewing the facts said the case, so far as the actual occurrence went, was a very simple one. The deceased, as the jury had heard, must have shot himself in the manner described, by pointing the rifle just under his chin and pulling the trigger. The wound thus inflicted obviously caused his death.

Why He Did It.

The question remains of course why he did it. They had the medical record of the man and the evidence of the surgeon who carried out the post-mortem examination, which showed that he was in a very advanced state of consumption. The medical report from the hospital had shown he was apparently incurable, and the surgeon thought he had not many years to live. That provided them with an explanation of his later acts. He knew he was incurable, and that he had no prospect of employment in Hongkong or elsewhere. In his later days, with the troubles times through which his country was passing, he appeared to have been unhappy.

The evidence disclosed by the inquiry showed that he must have contemplated suicide for some time—at any rate he got the bullet a considerable time before using it. Tuberculosis was presumably contracted sometime during 1930, or between May when he was medically examined on enlistment, and October or September of that year, when he went into hospital.

The jury had heard what the doctor said about the advanced state of the disease and the probability of its preying on the sufferer's mind. The peculiar circumstances of his country might have affected his mental outlook, and this together with consumption had depressed him, and this it appeared, very naturally caused him to commit suicide.

Complaints Groundless.

The complaints in the letter, as far as his Worship could make out, appeared to be groundless. His conditions of service showed that the Government had wholly carried out its contract with him. His record with the Police was good, and it was to be supposed that the tuberculosis coupled with the depressing circumstances of his life for the last 14 or 15 years must have preyed on his mind.

The Coroner: If you are satisfied that he died a suicide and that no one was to blame for it, you are justified in bringing in a verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind."

FIGHTING NEAR MUKDEN

ARTILLERY AUDIBLE IN CITY

Peking, Sept. 12.

More than 3,000 volunteers, under Gen. Shen Pao-in, are now engaged fighting Japanese troops in the suburbs of Mukden, according to this evening's issue of the Shih Chieh Wan Pao. Fighting is still proceeding, the paper adds, and artillery fire is clearly audible at Mukden during the day as well as at night.

Japanese forces are now counter-attacking, the same paper reports.

Japanese troops staged manoeuvres at Shanhaiwan early this morning without warning, causing panic among the populace.—Reuters Special.

STARTLING WORK
BY YORKSHIRE

SUTCLIFFE IN A
NEW ROLE

194 OUT OF 292 IN 165
MINUTES

Extraordinary scoring marked the partnership of Sutcliffe and Leyland in the second stage of Yorkshire's return match with Essex at Scarborough. At one point four consecutive overs sent down by K. Farnes, the Cambridge fast bowler, yielded 75 runs; while, in all, six consecutive overs at one period—delivered by Farnes, O'Connor, and Nichols—produced 102 runs.

Sutcliffe, during this sensational cricket, raised his individual score from 100 to 182 in 20 minutes, and altogether the two Yorkshiremen put on 149 runs in 55 minutes, the rate of scoring for this memorable stand being something more than 102 runs an hour.

Going in second wicket down at 90 and sixth man out at 382, Sutcliffe actually scored 194 out of 292 in two hours and three-quarters, putting together what was at once his tenth innings of three figures this year and the 103rd of his career. He started off by making 51 in an hour and a quarter, reached his 100 fifty minutes later, and then hit away in such wonderful fashion that he actually increased his score from 100 to 194 in 40 minutes.

Naturally enough, his play, seeing the tremendous pace at which he piled on runs, was not free from fault. On the contrary, his innings was really memorable for the luck he enjoyed as well as for the rate of scoring. When 51 he offered a comparatively easy catch to Farnes at mid-off, and he was let off again at 68, while after passing his hundred he gave chances at 115, 137, and 181. Eventually caught just in front of the sight screen off a big drive, he had as his chief strokes three sixes and twenty fours.

In the previous match, between Yorkshire and Essex, Sutcliffe made 313, so his two innings against the eastern county this season yielded him 507 runs.

BEFORE THE FUN BEGAN.

ENGLAND'S
BAD DAY

U.S. CHAMPIONSHIP
DEBACLE

FOUR ENGLISHMEN
PUT OUT AT
SAME TIME

Forest Hills, Sept. 7. The horde of foreign tennis stars who invaded the courts here for the U.S. national championships was turned back to-day by the defending Americans—all save one lone Frenchman.

That lone Frenchman was Henri Cochet of France, conceded last year as the world's No. 1 player, whose claim to that honour has been wobbling this year as a result of his elimination at Wimbledon, and his defeat in the Davis Cup challenge round by Ellsworth Vines.

Cochet, if he is to take home the American title and avenge Vines' recent triumph must meet and conquer three of America's best, as the quarter-finals, semi-finals and finals are still waiting ahead of him.

To-day's play in the fourth round saw four able British players—Frederick Perry, Bunny Austin, Edward Avery and John Oliff—fall by the wayside. T. Kuwabara, the only other foreigner left in the play, also was eliminated.

Stellar work on the part of the ranking American players cleared these and other able foreigners save Cochet from the courts before the quarter-finals was reached, a remarkable feat considering the caliber of those who were eliminated to-day and others who went before, including Jiroh Satoh of Japan and Marcel Bernard of France.

The surviving Americans, and their ranking after the 1931 season, were: Ellsworth Vines, No. 1; George Lott, Jr., No. 2; Frank X. Shields, No. 3; Clifford Sutter, No. 4; Sidney Wood, No. 5; Wilmer Allison, No. 6; Lester Stoecken, No. 7.

MAGNIFICENT COCHET.

Cochet ran into his first serious opposition of the tournament in the play to-day when he encountered John Van Ryn, U.S. No. 4 player. After three sets of superb tennis, two of which went to extra games, Cochet won, 7-5, 6-3, 8-6.

The routing of the four Britishers was sensational.

Sidney Wood was pitted against Britain's best, Frederick Perry, and conquered him after five sizzling sets, coming up from behind after losing the first two sets. The scores were, 3-6, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, 7-5.

After getting off to a poor start in the first two sets, Wood simply swamped the British star in the third and fourth sets, which he took by the love count. Perry rallied in the final set, but the American outlasted him.

Clifford Sutter of New Orleans swept through Bunny Austin, Britain's No. 2 performer, without great difficulty, winning one love set. The scores were 6-2, 6-0, 7-5.

OLIFF GOES.

Frank Shields, who flunked out in the Davis Cup play in Europe this year, seemed to be getting his old form back. He defeated John Oliff of England, winning after four sets, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Wilmer Allison, heavy duty member of the recent Davis Cup challenge round against France, disposed of Edward Avery of Britain, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

George Lott, Jr., found T. Kuwabara, lone Japanese survivor, a difficult opponent, but after dropping his first set the American got onto Kuwabara's game and won the next three. The scores were 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines, whom most fans expect to see meet Cochet in the finals, and Keith Gledhill, U.S. doubles champion, faced each other from opposite sides of the court in another noteworthy event. Vines gave his doubles partner little opportunity and won 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

Lester Stoecken of California, the new star on the American horizon, who created a surprise earlier in the meet when he eliminated Satoh of Japan, proved it wasn't a fluke by beating Gre-

for
Davis Cup
CONTEST TO BE EXTENDED?

London, Sept. 6. New rules for the Davis Cup tennis competition may come into force next year whereby the contests would be spread over a period of two years and certain of the countries would be seeded.

The proposal was discussed at length at a meeting of the Davis Cup nations, here. Briefly, it envisages a preliminary competition among the European nations other than those which reached the semi-finals in the competition proper of any year. The four nations reaching the semi-finals of the preliminary competition would enter the competition proper in the following year together with the semi-finalists of the previous year and other non-European challengers.

The proposal was well received as indicated by the fact that only five nations voted against it. As the necessary two-thirds majority was not obtained however, the scheme is to be re-submitted for the consideration of the nations. The final and deciding votes on the matter are to be returned on or before January 29, 1933.

be her final attempt to win the title, as she is retiring from competitive golf after her return from America.

Miss Wilson, who is only 22, is generally recognised as Great Britain's foremost lady player.

ACIDITY THE CAUSE OF INDIGESTION

Any medical man will tell you that most cases of indigestion and allied stomach troubles are caused by excess acid in the stomach, which, unless quickly counteracted, may ultimately ruin the digestive organs. This acid makes the food in your stomach ferment and thus form gases which cause painful distension. The common-sense remedy for acidity is 'Bismarated' Magnesia, which instantly neutralises excess acid, prevents fermentation, and soothes, heals and strengthens the acid-inflamed stomach lining. Doctors recommend 'Bismarated' Magnesia because it never fails to give immediate relief by removing the cause of the trouble. You can get 'Bismarated' Magnesia at all chemists, and there is no better, quicker and surer remedy for digestive disorders.

Nothing else makes teeth so white as DOUBLE ACTION Cleansing

Listerine Tooth Paste, made by the makers of Listerine Antiseptic, contains special cleansing and polishing agents never before combined in any other dentifrice.

Amazing results are obtained especially when it is used with a scientifically designed Pro-phy-lac-tic

Tooth Brush.

The use of the two gives*double action cleansing.

The tufted end, notched bristle surface, and extra-resilient bristles of the Pro-phy-lac-tic reach between the teeth and behind the molars, allowing the wonderful cleansing agents of Listerine Tooth Paste to do their work most efficiently. Operating in perfect unison, the dentifrice and brush thoroughly clean every part of every tooth, massaging the margins of the gums, and producing a delightful feeling of cleanliness throughout the entire mouth.

Try double action cleansing. Notice yourself how swiftly it imparts a new brilliance to the teeth! Once you use double action cleansing you will never go back to ordinary dentifrices and unsatisfactory tooth brushes.

IMPORTANT: Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brushes are always sold in sanitary yellow boxes; never loose. Listerine Tooth Paste is sold usually at considerably lower prices than other quality dentifrices. It should save you enough to pay for the Pro-phy-lac-tic Brushes you use.

SHIP'S OFFICER'S HEROISM: EPIC OF THE SEA

SHIP PILED ON ROCKS

SWIM TO SHORE IN RAGING SEAS

SAVES 37 LIVES

TWO DEAD IN NOVA SCOTIA WRECK

(Telegraph Special.)

London, Sept. 13.

Another brilliant epic of the sea, the hero of which was a young London merchant marine officer, accompanied the loss of the British collier, Watford, which was wrecked off the Nova Scotia coast yesterday.

The Watford became a total loss and but for a brilliant feat of daring by the young officer it is probable that all aboard would have gone down with the doomed craft.

Mr. H. Mant, the second officer of the collier, battled through a raging sea to the shore and succeeded in saving the lives of thirty-seven of his shipmates.

A graphic story of the affair comes to hand from Sydney, in Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, off which the collier was wrecked.

PILED ON ROCKS.

Piled upon the rocks near Cape Breton Point, it was quickly realised that the Watford was doomed to complete destruction. Heavy seas were breaking clean over her, doing enormous damage and at the same time making it impossible to launch the boats. Several attempts were made but the boats were smashed against the ship's side.

Meanwhile, the vessel was crunching and grinding on the rocks and was rapidly breaking up. In these terrible circumstances, undaunted by the raging waters, Mr. Mant plunged into the sea carrying a line.

TERRIFIC STRUGGLE.

He battled his way through enormous breakers, his progress being watched anxiously from the ship, where everyone thought that the next powerful blow from the breakers would put an end to the heroic effort. He emerged safely through all, however, and succeeded in securing a line to the shore.

Thirty-seven of his shipmates were then transferred to the shore by means of a breeches-buoy.

TWO DROWNED.

Two men lost their lives as a result of the mishap. The Chief Officer and a seaman were drowned.—Reuter.

STUDENT BOUND OVER

SEQUEL TO SERIES OF THEFTS

Appearing on remand on charges of theft from various houses in Hongkong and Kowloon, a young Chinese student was bound over by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning in two sureties of $100 to come up for judgment when called upon.

In connection with the case, Mr. Nobson, second-hand dealer, of Nathan Road, was yesterday summoned before his Worship on a charge of receiving stolen property.

NANKING'S PROBLEM

A DISAPPEARING
PREMIER

WANG CHING-WEI ADAMANT

(Telegraph Special.)

Shanghai, Sept. 13.

Shanghai is again becoming the venue of delegations seeking to induce Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the President of the Executive Yuan, to return to Nanking and resume his duties.

Hitherto, however, despite all overtures and denials, he remains adamant.

Among the delegates seeking to persuade Mr. Wang to change his mind is Mr. Chang Chun, the former Mayor of Greater Shanghai, who is arriving to-day from Hankow to see Wang Ching-wei on behalf of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.

NO CRISIS FEARED.

It is generally believed that Mr. Wang will finally return but even if he does not, a serious political crisis is not anticipated. Mr. Wang Ching-wei appears to have lost considerable ground lately. He left Nanking because of the failure of his efforts to secure substitutes for Mr. Hu Han-min and Chiang Kai-shek on the Standing Committee of the Central Political Council.—Reuter.

N.Y. SHARE JOLT

HEAVY SELLING
WAVE BEGINS

New York, Sept. 12.

The Stock Exchange market got its worst jolt to-day since the recent upward turn.

There was a wave of selling, and losses of from two to seven points were recorded in a long list of issues.

The reasons assigned for the slump are lack of solid signs of business improvement, particularly heaviness in wheat and cotton. Altogether, four million shares changed hands.

Other markets also declined.—Reuter.

Quotations of representative groups show that industrials declined 4.34 yesterday, compared with Saturday's falls dropped 3.72; and utilities fell 2.97. Detailed quotations will be found elsewhere.

Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Co. report that there were some signs of support in the market during the afternoon.

GANDHI TO FAST "UNTO DEATH"

COMMUNAL DECISIONS
PROTEST

CORRESPONDENCE WITH PREMIER

London, Sept. 12.

THE MAHATMA GANDHI HAS DECIDED TO "FAST UNTO DEATH" as a protest against the British Government's solution of the problem of the Depressed Classes in the communal decision recently announced.

The fast will commence, Gandhi says, on September 20. The probabilities are that he will be released from prison on that date.

Gandhi has been engaged in correspondence with the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, and the Secretary of State for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, touching the problem of the Depressed Classes. Gandhi maintains that the Government's solution is no remedy for their crushing degradation and his decision to fast follows the inability of the British Government to alter their decision.

In his final message, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald expresses regret at Gandhi's decision and says that the Government's decision must stand. He points out that it was reached as a means of safeguarding the rights and interests of the Depressed Classes.

MAIN FEATURES OF THE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST CORRESPONDENCE DISORDERS

Prime Minister Suggests Misunderstanding

The feature of the Government's proposals which has led Gandhi to adopt this course is the special electoral treatment provided for the Depressed Classes who, although within the Hindu system, are "untouchable." For all other Hindus, they cast pollution by touch, and defile food and water. The Simon Report said: "Their state is indeed pitiable, just living on the edge of starvation and unaware of any force of improving their lot."

The Government's decision sought to place the Depressed Classes in a position to speak for themselves through a certain number of members of their own choosing in the Legislatures of seven out of nine Provinces, but, in order to preserve the unity of Hindu society, the decision did not deprive them of their vote in the general Hindu constituencies. The decision had not, however, been published on March 11th, the date of Gandhi's first letter to Sir Samuel Hoare.

GANDHI'S VIEW.

In it, Gandhi says his statement at the Round Table Conference that he would resist with his life the grant of a separate electorate to the Depressed Classes was meant to be a serious statement. "I hold," he said, "that a separate electorate is harmful for them and for Hinduism, whatever it may be from a purely political standpoint. To appreciate the harm that separate electorates would do to them, one has to know how they are distributed amongst the so-called Hindus, and how dependent they are on the latter. So far as Hinduism is concerned, a separate electorate would simply vivisection and disrupt it. For me, the question of these classes is predominantly moral and religious."

"I therefore respectfully inform His Majesty's Government that, in the event of their decision creating a separate electorate for the Depressed Classes, I must fast unto death. So far as I can see now, my discharge from imprisonment would not make the duty of fast any less imperative."

Irish Offer to Britain

Another Note to be Sent This Week

ARBITRATION ISSUE

Dublin, Sept. 13.

The question of fixing a date whereby the offer to submit the land annuities dispute to arbitration by an international tribunal must be accepted by Great Britain is being considered by the Irish Free State Executive Council.

No official announcement has been made, but it is understood that another Note is being despatched to Britain this week. It is also hinted that it will contain a statement to the effect that the Free State is ready to place the money in the custody of an international institution should Britain agree to settlement by negotiation or arbitration without restrictions regarding the composition of the Arbitration Court.—Reuter.

REASSEMBLY OF PARLIAMENT

DATE ADVANCED BY NINE DAYS

London, Sept. 12.

It is officially announced that Parliament will reassemble on October 18th, and not on October 27th, the date originally fixed. The chief reason for advancing the date is that legislation has to be introduced to implement the decisions of the Ottawa Conference.—Reuter.

FRANCE'S REPLY TO GERMANY DANGER OF RENEWED ARMS RACE IN EQUALITY DEMAND

Paris, Sept. 12.

Refusal to agree with the German contention that any Convention reached by the Disarmament Conference could have the effect of superseding the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles is the main point of the French Reply to the German aide memoire.

The general tenor is to resist the German claim to equality of armaments.

The Note rebuts the German anticipation of "insufficiency" on the part of the Disarmament Conference.

IMPERIAL SANCTION
FORTHCOMING

Tokyo, Sept. 13.

In the presence of the Emperor this morning, the Privy Council approved the recognition of Manchukuo. Imperial sanction for the step will be received by the Foreign Office this afternoon.

The Treaty of Recognition will be signed at Changchun on Thursday, September 15, three days before the anniversary of the capture of Mukden.—Reuter.

DISASTER AVERTED

GERMANY'S POLITICAL STRIFE

VON PAPEN HOLDS
WHIP HAND

FEARS OF UGLY CLASH ALLAYED

Berlin, Sept. 12.

The dramatic development leading to the dissolution of the Reichstag has created a furor in political circles and the question of whether the dissolution was legally effected is being fiercely debated.

The question is fraught with serious consequences as the Speaker of the Reichstag, Captain Goering, has summoned the House to meet again to-morrow, while the Government is reported to be determined to prevent a meeting by force of arms if necessary.

Peaceable citizens are praying that wise counsels will prevail to prevent a serious clash and pin their hopes on the German tradition that rebellions do not occur as long as rebellions are verboten.

MEETING CANCELLED.

Later. Wiser counsels have prevailed and the political situation is much easier to-night. Captain Goering has decided to call off the sitting of the Reichstag which he proposed to convoke to-morrow.

This happier position is the result of a letter from the Chancellor, Captain von Papen, stating that Goering's refusal to give the Chancellor the floor and also his conduct of the Communist non-confidence motion were unconstitutional.

The Government states that it will permit only the Committee for Foreign Affairs and the Committee for Safeguarding the Rights of Parliament to function after the dissolution.

NEXT ELECTION.

Captain von Papen further states that he is only awaiting to-morrow's developments before recommending to President von Hindenburg the date of the next election.

Captain Goering withdrew the notices for to-morrow's meeting on receipt of this letter. He disagrees with von Papen's version of the procedure but believes that the Supreme Court at Leipzig would hold the dissolution to be effective.

Captain Goering's decision has allayed the fears of an ugly clash to-morrow, and turned an anti-climax to an intensely exciting

WITHIN 25 MILES OF HARBIN

Peking, Sept. 13.

Fresh and powerful groups of Chinese Volunteers who have been pouring into Manchuria through Jehol are now menacing Harbin and Kirin, as well as Changchun and Mukden, according to Chinese reports.

The Japanese and Manchukuo forces are being harassed in all quarters and the disposition of troops to meet a series of concerted attacks is becoming daily a more serious problem.

Volunteers who yesterday started a drive against Harbin are now only twenty-five miles from the city, having already occupied Shangchenpao and Ancheng, easily overcoming the opposition.

KIRIN CRISIS.

A critical situation also exists in Kirin where martial law has been declared by the Manchukuo garrison commander as another large force of Volunteers is rapidly approaching.

Changchun's defences have proved successful against the Volunteers in that area so far.

GEN. MA REDIVIVUS.

Meanwhile, a telegram from General Ma Chan-shan reports further victories over Japanese troops and Manchukuo forces, saying that his troops are co-operating with the Heilungkiang Volunteers and have occupied Chingchen. They are now advancing on Suihua, according to Ma Chan-shan's message.

Suihua is about 80 miles to the north of Harbin.—Reuter.

ARMAMENT DEMAND.

The Chancellor upheld the Government's viewpoint, emphasizing the paramount need for national unity, particularly in view of the international disarmament discussions.

"It would be intolerable for us to be treated any longer as a second-class nation, unprotected amidst a continent bristling with arms," he asserted, adding, "The Cabinet will decide in the near future."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Have you ever noticed the symmetry of distribution? If your hand contains a singleton, you are almost sure to find another hand with a singleton—if your hand is void, the odds are in favour of a second hand being void. This is a good point to keep in mind both in the defence and in the play of the hand.
Today's hand was played by Mrs. Florence S. Wright of Moline Ill., one of the leading women tournament players of the middle west, at the Tri-City Bridge Club, which meets in Davenport, Ia., where the bridge players of three cities—Moline and Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport—assemble to compete in duplicate play.

♠ K-Q-J-9-4-3-2	♥ Q-7-4	♦ 8-7-3	♣ None
SOUTH

The Bidding
South, the dealer, although he holds seven spades, does not have an original bid and passed. Mrs. Wright, sitting in the West, passed. Third hand bids under the one over one system can be made with a very weak hand. North holds a pretty fair hand, especially with his two suits, so started the contracting with a bid of one club. When holding a six-card and a five-card suit, the longer suit should be bid first.
East doubled and South bid one spade. Mrs. Wright then bid two hearts. North showed his second suit by bidding three diamonds. East jumped the contract to four hearts.

The Play
What would you open with the North hand? Certainly not a spade. Partner could not bid a spade the first time, therefore you cannot depend on him as having a strong spade suit. Your hand is void of hearts.
There is a chance that South may be void of a suit, and naturally the best chance lies in your long suit, therefore the correct opening on the hand would be the king of clubs and when dummy covers with the ace, South should ruff with the four of hearts. You will find that the declarer can now make only four hearts, his contract.
When the hand was actually played, North opened a spade and Mrs. Wright developed a nice squeeze play to make six odd, losing only the queen of hearts.

Queen Mary thought it would be easy to go alone on a shopping trip in London. But the sight of Her Majesty wandering unattended through the shops drew crowds of curious people. Picture shows her being helped through the throng by a policeman.

At a critical point in the Davis Cup when Cochet and Brugnon were threatening to defeat Van Ryn, and William Allison, the latter slipped, Allison was down, but not out of the play, and raised himself to meet a volley by one of the Frenchmen, safely returned the ball (indicated by arrow), and sprang to his feet.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and move into a cheap apartment. Cherry's struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson, also of the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

Cherry and Dan are invited to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is jealous and Cherry starts with Max Pearson. A storm overtakes them and while they are waiting for it to pass he tells her he loves her. They finally reach home but after that Cherry avoids Pearson.

Brenda Vail, magazine writer, comes to Wellington. Dan meets her and she asks him to collaborate with her on a play. Dan spends most of his evenings at Miss Vail's apartment working on the play. Believing Cherry is lonely Dan asks Pearson to drop in to see her.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Cherry dropped her fare into the box as the street car lurched forward. There was a vacant seat half-way down the car and she made her way toward it. Twice the car jolted and almost flung her into the laps of other passengers. She reached the seat and sank into it.

It was 11 o'clock of a bright September morning. Cherry had shopping to do down town. The yellow house dress, the making of which had caused her so much anxiety, had turned out well. Dixie Shannon had seen the dress and liked it. Now Cherry was on her way down town to buy more material. She was to make another dress for herself and one for Dixie who had agreed to pay $1.50 over the cost of the material for the making.

"It will give me something to do evenings," Cherry had said when she had agreed to Dixie's request. "I'll get yellow for you, too. The same shade as mine or as near like it as I can find."

The shopping was to be done in the basement of Sherman's Department Store. Dixie had directed Cherry to that emporium and she had found there a wealth of bargains. Socks for Dan that would have cost 20 cents more anywhere else. Yard goods. Household equipment. The potted foliage plant that looked so well on the window sill.

Going to Sherman's was a pleasant adventure. Cherry leaned back in her seat and looked out at the street. She had no need to hurry today. The apartment had been left in apple pie order. It would be fun to window-shop after she had made her purchases and have a look at the new fall styles.

She noticed that the two women who sat in front of her wore hats of felt.

"I suppose it's time for them," the girl thought, "but somehow I can't realize the summer's over."

Idly she glanced about the car. There were four straw hats and nine of felt. Yes, autumn had certainly arrived. Cherry decided to get out her old brown felt for her next trip down town.

She left the street car and walked to the two blocks to Sherman's. The entrance to the large building was swarming with customers and inside the store even more crowded.

Cherry saw huge placards that read, "Anniversary Sale," and "Sherman's for Service."

A woman dragging a little girl by one arm jammed her way into the elevator. She crowded Cherry against the wall but it was only for a moment. Then the car stopped and the door swung open again. They had reached the bargain basement.

The crowd about the yard goods counters was larger than Cherry had ever seen but she did not mind. She had plenty of time to linger until her turn to be waited upon.

"Three yards of this yellow," she told the clerk, "and three yards of the pink and white."

The pink and white pattern was very attractive. Cherry thought Dan would like to see her wearing it. She bought thread and some buttons and braid. Instead of taking the elevator she walked to the ground floor.

"And now for the shop windows!" she thought eagerly as she elbowed her way to the street.

There was little to be seen behind the plate glass that fronted Sherman's. Bargains left over from summer and a display of window draperies. Cherry turned and made her way toward Chestnut street. Here was Madeline's exclusive establishment, Stanley's and Logan's—both department stores—and several specialty shops that sought their clients from Wellington's wealthiest families. As Cherry had expected there were fall dresses, winter coats and hats on display in these shop windows. The colours were rich browns, reds and greens with here and there a lustrous black. They were beautiful costumes made of expensive materials and artfully designed.

"But I don't know why I'm looking at them," the girl thought a trifle wistfully. "Of course I can't afford to buy anything here this fall."

She was standing in front of Madeline's shop admiring a small dress when she heard some-

Cherry recognized that voice. "Oh, Miss Vail!" she said as she turned. "How do you do?"

Brenda Vail's voice rose in its fluttering way. "What a coincidence! You know I've been thinking of you this morning. Wondering why Dan hadn't brought you to see me again. Now that we've met you simply must have lunch with me."

Cherry tried to decline. She was not quick enough to invent a plausible excuse and the other was insistent.

"We'll go to Stanley's tearoom," she said. "It's quiet there and it seems to be the only place in Wellington where a pot of tea is made properly."

Cherry found herself stepping into an elevator and then emerging into the department store tearoom. Certainly it was quiet here. The floor was covered with soft, dark green carpet. There were buff walls, an attractive background for the Italian furnishings and the tables were gay with bright hued garden flowers. The waitresses, in their trim green and buff uniforms, added a pleasant note of colour.

For a few moments Cherry thought with alarm that she might encounter some of her former acquaintances. She surveyed the room hastily, recognized no one.

A slender girl in black led them to a table near a window. Cherry sat down, facing her companion. Miss Vail looked quite different in street clothes than when Cherry had seen her before. She was dressed in black and white. The closely wrapped black turban showed only an edge of the brilliant tian hair. It seemed to bring out the irregularities of her features. Cherry noticed for the first time that Miss Vail's nose was too large. There were tiny lines suggesting age at the corners of her eyes and the same minute markings on her forehead. Daylight and the startling contrast of the black and white costume were not kind to that face.

Apparently Miss Vail was unaware of this. She consulted Cherry about the order, repeated it to the waitress with several sharp comments and then turned her attention again to Cherry.

"And why haven't you come to see me?" she demanded.

Cherry hesitated. She had suddenly become conscious of her worn linen frock and old hat. "I—I thought you were busy working," she began.

Miss Vail shrugged. "I suppose if you're not interested in creative work you would find it boring. Of course I can't really understand that point of view for to me my work is my life. Still we must have other interests in common and I was so anxious that we should be friends." She paused as though searching for an "interest" that might be suited to Cherry's mentality.

"You like a good word puzzle?"

them quite entertaining. You know at some of the smartest parties in New York they've been going in for simple games."

Cherry replied that she had not looked at a crossword puzzle for several years.

"But how do you spend your time?" the other persisted. "I cook," the girl said firmly, "and wash dishes and sweep and dust. When I've finished all that there's always mending or sewing or the marketing to do."

"The little housewife!" Brenda Vail gushed. "But I might have known. Of course you're the domestic type. Men of Dan's talent and ability are so often attracted by girls who have led a quiet home-life. And it's so easy to understand! Dan is such a real future young man. He has a real future and I know you're not going to stand in the way!"

"Stand in the way?" Cherry repeated. "Why, what do you mean?"

Miss Vail said soothingly, "Only that of course he'll want to branch out—broaden his horizons—meet other creative artists and—well, in short, learn to express himself. And you mustn't worry your pretty little head about it. Dan has temperament and it would never do to stifle it!"

"I guess I don't understand much about temperament," Cherry said. "I don't think Dan's being stifled. Of course I know he's anxious to go to New York."

"He must. Oh, yes, it's the place for him."

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and his wife, Joan Crawford, thought they'd get away from the pictures by taking a vacation in Europe. But photographers follow the young stars wherever they go, and here you see them as they arrived in Paris from London.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1932.

SOME CRITICSED REFORMS

The new political group at Home known as the Empire Party has come forward with sweeping proposals said to be in the joint interest of economy and efficiency. Amongst the ideas put forward is a reduction in the number of M.P.'s by at least 150, reorganisation and concentration of Government departments, the constitution of a Civil Service Board to take over the duties of the Civil Service Commission, functioning of the High Courts throughout the year, abolition of motor-car police patrols, and the employment of convicted persons on partially deferred reward, even in competition with other labour. It is proposed that there should be a unification under one Cabinet Minister of all departments dealing with trade and industry, assistant ministers being appointed for each sub-division. By this method it is claimed that great administrative economies would be effected and efficiency produced by co-ordinated effort for the resurrection of industries. Other amalgamations of Government departments suggested include the Foreign Office and the Dominions Office under one Secretary of State, the constitution of the Treasury as a Ministry of Finance under the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the amalgamation of the Ministry of Pensions, Paymaster-General's department, and all superannuation sections of defence and civil departments.

Regarding the reduction in the number of M.P.'s the area would count as much as population in redistributing seats. It is further proposed that relief for unemployed who are not insured or whose insurance has expired should be at a definitely lower rate than for insured persons, and to be conditional on able-bodied persons of both sexes doing massed physical exercises. Police patrol work, it is suggested, should be done mainly by motor cycle or pedal ed specially from ex-Servicemen, &c., and be under the control of the authority responsible for roads. As might be expected, the proposals have come in for marked criticism, the authors being accused of amateurism and inexperience of practical affairs. One journal remarks that the suggestion that membership of the House of Commons should be reduced by about one-fourth is enough to condemn the scheme. If reform could be undertaken "in a vacuum" much might be said for a smaller Legislature, but anyone who knows its working at close quarters realises that such a proposal would at once arouse the keenest opposition. The suggestion that great economies would result if the number of Ministers were reduced by amalgamation is considered as being equally futile. The salaries of the political heads, are the merest trifle compared with the total cost of the Departments, and if these were made larger, and the political supervision thereby reduced, expenditure might be increased rather than reduced.

It would appear that the reformers labour under the misapprehension that the salaries of what is vaguely called "White-hall" are responsible for a large proportion of public expenditure. The administrative cost of the State Departments is probably less in proportion to the total expenditure of any comparable private concern. Expenditure depends on policy, and until that is altered by the House of Commons substantial saving is impossible. To point out the increase which has taken place in the staff of the various Departments, and to pay no regard to the increased duties which Parliament has imposed upon them is, to say the least, mere trifling.

Sports or Sportsmanship?

The outstanding feature of the Olympic Games was, of course, the remarkable amount of record breaking witnessed, particularly in the track and field events. Swimming and the women's contests naturally showed many new marks because they are comparatively new competitions. But even in events which have been in world-wide competition for thirty-five years the winner who did not also knock down at least an Olympic record at Los Angeles was considered almost a failure. Out of twenty-three track and field events for men, twenty new Olympic records were set and eleven world's records equalled or exceeded. The visitors seemed to adopt a familiar western habit of refusing to admit that what is good enough. Probably some credit must go to the almost ideal conditions California provided. But the largest factor, of course, is the increasing amount of preliminary competition which found its final outlet at Los Angeles. The spread of sports, not only into nations but into strata of society which hardly knew them a few years ago, has produced a vast reservoir of athletic talent from which the Olympic Games draw only the quintessence of ability. The number actually in competition at Los Angeles was less than at some earlier Olympiads, but they were only the representatives of an increasing host of athletes whose competitions are every year better organised. Some lovers of sports for their own sake see a danger in this trend toward organisation. They believe it tends to make spectacles of sports and hence to commercialise. They blame it for excessive specialisation and excessive emphasis on winning, and say it threatens the genuine amateur ideal. There is value in this warning. Record breaking can be overstressed. It is but a symbol of physical excellence. And the underlying purpose of the Olympic Games is to promote sports as an agency for inculcating those mental excellences comprised in good sportsmanship. But other lovers of athletics believe that sports tend in the main to carry sportsmanship with them.

DAY BY DAY

MATRIMONY IS A SEA FOR WHICH NO COMPASS HAS YET BEEN INVENTED.—Heine.

During the week-end, only one case of cholera, from the Victoria district, and one case of paratyphoid, were reported to the health authorities.

Breaking into the third floor of 87, Gloucester Road, Wanchai, the residence of Miss Clark, by wrenching a lock off a staircase door, a burglar on Sunday night stole clothing to the value of $204.

Leung Wing-hau, 25, a tailor of 111, Hennessy Road, has been admitted to hospital, the victim of an assault with a pen-knife following an altercation with another man, who is now in custody on the charge.

Mr. George W. Grey has returned to Hongkong again to practice as a Chartered Architect and Chartered Surveyor. During Mr. Grey's absence he has been architect with Messrs. Rendel, Palmer, and Tritton, the Westminster Consulting Engineers, and has been working upon the Charing Cross Bridge scheme, the new Waterloo Bridge, with its alternate re-conditioning, the new Chelsea Bridge, Royal Docks approaches, and the proposed railway from Haifa to Baghdad.

An engagement has just been announced in Canton between Mr. Frederick Kraemer and Miss Clara Hayward. Mr. Kraemer is a member of Messrs. Reuter, Brockelmann and Co., one of the biggest German import and export firms in Canton, and Miss Hayward, who was formerly a teacher in the Lingnam University, is at present in Bristol, England, where the wedding is to take place. Mr. Kraemer on his return with his wife will live in Tungshan. The young couple are both keen riders, Miss Hayward having won several races in last year's meetings of the Canton Ride.

LET US SAY GOOD-BYE TO OLYMPIC GAMES

By JOHN RESSICH

WHEN considering the Olympic Games in this year of grace it is interesting to observe their trend.

It has always been a conviction amongst certain nations that Britain's world-predominance was out of all relation to our actual strength. Ignoring the persistence of character they affected to find it a pretence. They thought so eighteen years ago and we proved them wrong.

Certainly in proportion to the world-influence wielded to-day by this country it can be admitted that the total of our Olympic points appears poor. Having conceded that, let us examine what we are faced with in order to discover if it is reasonably worth our while to participate in future.

The United States of America, with its vast polyglot population and flamboyant patriotism, beset with its determination to "beat the band" at any cost, has set the pace. With one outstanding exception, the nations of Europe, follow from conviction or example, low. That exception is ourselves.

However greatly it may suit certain apostles to burke realities, we gain nothing by refusing to see that despite pious hopes to the contrary, the national keynote as sounded by von Bernhardt still persists: war, he insisted, is a biological necessity and an extension of policy.

Follow My Leader.

To those who read the signs this Continental post-war cult of athletics is almost entirely encouraged from political motives.

It is a sad reflection on human nature that whenever a body composed of opposing forces decides to agree on similar lines of action, sooner or later one of them goes back on the bargain—the rest is merely a scramble to follow.

No sooner does Europe settle to the hope and even the prospects, however faint, of an era of arranged peace, than the inevitable happens.

Just as a string of tired suburbanites progressing stationwards can be seen suddenly starting to sprint simply because the leading bread-winner, his watch being wrong, and fearing to miss his train, has set off at a gallop; so one perverse mind can destroy the world's peace. All must follow.

Having observed and studied the value in peace and war of our national athletic tendencies and love of sport (did not that clever old man Bismarck observe that we never could have a revolution in this country while the people were so fond of horse-racing) the Continent at large has seized upon "sports-training" as the certain road to supremacy in peace and war.

Retire With Dignity.

Quite two years ago a bankrupt European country voted seventy thousand pounds sterling as a preliminary grant towards the expense of training their team for 1932 Olympic Games. From one end of the Continent to the other the same thing went on.

While admitting the difficulty of defining accurately the precise status of an amateur in any particular game, we all know beyond any sophisticated argument what in the general sense is an amateur, and when we take this "official" financial grant as an indication of what our handful of competitors had to face, it is time seriously to consider the advisability of clearing out of what has no value or even interest for us and what appears to be a fertile stamping ground for the development of the seven deadly sins.

To-day we can retire with dignity, for, considering the paucity of our numbers and without apology for the difficulties of training, the old country did right well this year, and it is surely preposterous to have to appeal for funds in order to send a gallant handful of amateurs to compete against hordes of scarcely-veiled and long-prepared professionals.

We Taught Them.

Make it a confessedly professional show and be done with it. Alternatively (although heaven forbid) follow the example of other nations and let us have a Government grant by means of which we may take a large number of potential representatives from their occupations for eliminating purposes, or—let us retire gracefully now.

We have taught foreigners all they know—except sportsmanship, which they seem congenitally slow to assimilate. Even I am old enough to remember when tennis and football, to mention only two, were almost unheard of on the Continent, while a boxer was as rare as a Chinaman with red whiskers, and the youth of the lesser breeds fell away respectfully from your boyish path in the belief that by virtue of the closed fist we were a nation apart and under the favoured countenance of the Lord. If by specialisation our pupils have been able to produce individuals who excel—why worry!

For at least two centuries we have set the world's standard not only in sport but in things that matter, from personal cleanliness downwards. Our men's clothes for everything and our women's in sport are the envy and despair of the world.

We, the least military nation in Europe, have had our field uniform copied by all countries and the cut of our riding-breeches and boots is the abiding marvel of the age. The list is endless.

Not Our Kind.

So let them assemble to snarl and triumph as they will. International sport is not sport as we know and practise it.

The definite and growing lack of interest in this country over the mere existence of these Olympic Games is the clearest indication of their inevitable extinction so far as we are concerned and I feel I express the conviction of the vast majority of thinking people when I say bluntly that the time has come to leave it to the others with our benevolent good wishes.

THIS BUDGET RACKET

By Edward Kelly, Financier.

This week in Legislative Council the Budget will be introduced.

The Treasurer will be there with the Hon. Colonial Secretary. Bankers, brokers, journalists, and other prominent people will also be there to see what the blow will amount to this year.

We will take our seat and say: "Well, gentlemen, about this chit account of mine. My wife says—"

The Hon. Colonial Secretary (we know it) will interrupt and say, "Hon. Members will notice that the sum of $60,000 has been allotted this year for the Shing Mun scheme."

And we will keep prattling on.

"The tailor said to me, he said, 'Now listen to me! I've been pretty lenient with you'..."

And one of the Unofficial Members will say, "I regret, your Excellency, that increased amounts have not been allotted for road work in the Colony this year."

And we'll say, "...We were only saying to the chap who sits next to us in the ferry what a terrible thing it is having your chit account at the hotels stopped just because..."

And then they will all tell us to shut up, and start talking in millions. Then we will produce our list.

Everybody has a list. If they haven't got one, it's only because they are not game to make it up.

We will stand up and read it in a loud, sing-song voice.

in Twelfth Inning

New York, Sept. 12. While the Yankees have not yet actually won the American League pennant, their victory over Cleveland to-day makes it impossible for them to be overtaken. Cleveland carried the struggle into the twelfth inning, when Cleveland broke to allow five runs to cross the plate. Washington and Philadelphia won again, Cochrane hitting a homer for the Athletics. A circuit clout by Frederick gave Brooklyn victory over Chicago in the National. Exactly five games now separate the Cubs from the Pirates. Paul Waner scored a home run for the Pirates against the Phillies.

fully the strength of Gandhi's feeling upon the question of separate electorates, and promised it would be taken into account before the Government decision was given.

"DEAR FRIEND"

A further letter from Gandhi to the Prime Minister, whom he addressed as "Dear friend," written on August 18th, after the Government's decision has been announced, says: "I have to resist your decision with my life. The only way I can do so is by declaring a perpetual fast unto death from food of any kind, save water, with or without salt and soda. This fast will cease if, during its progress, the British Government, of its own motion or under pressure of public opinion, revise their decision and withdraw their scheme of communal electorates for the Depressed Classes, whose representatives should be elected by a general electorate under a common franchise, no matter how wide it is.

"The proposed fast will come into operation in the ordinary course from 20th September next, unless the said decision is meanwhile revised. I ask that this letter and my letter to Sir Samuel Hoare be published. I want public opinion to be affected by my letters. Hence my request for their early publication. I regret the decision I have taken, but as a man of religion I have no other course left open to me."

PREMIER REPLIES.

The Prime Minister, in a reply cabled on September 8th, expressed his sincere regret at Gandhi's letter and proceeded: "I cannot help thinking you have written it under a misunderstanding as to what the decision of His Majesty's Government as regards the Depressed Classes really implies. We have always understood that you were irrevocably opposed to the permanent segregation of the Depressed Classes from the Hindu community. I also knew that your view was shared by a great body of Hindu opinion, and we therefore took it into most careful account, when we were considering the question of representation of the Depressed Classes.

"Whilst, in view of the numerous appeals which have been received from the Depressed Classes' organisations and the generally admitted social disabilities under which they labour, and which you have often re-

CHINESE COURAGE
PRAISED.WORK OF FLOOD RELIEF
COMMISSION

London, Sept. 12. The great resource, organising ability and extraordinary courage of the Chinese technical staff of the Flood Relief Commission, is paid a tribute in a long article in The Times by Sir Hope Simpson, dealing with flood relief in China.

He emphasised the fact that the Commission was hampered in its efforts on the north bank of the Yangtze by bandits, and cites an incident in which a bandit horde in Honan overwhelmed the headquarters of the Commission and carried off its resources in grain and cash, yet when the band retreated, the Commission re-started work with a newly recruited staff.

He estimated that a thousand workmen on the north bank of the Yangtze lost their lives in a month as a result of red raids.

The Times, in a leading article on the matter, says that it speaks well for the spirit of the Chinese employees of the Commission who faced perils without flinching. "Indeed, an account of their work and the prevalence of Communism and banditry, in the Yangtze Valley, gives the impression that the Chinese deserve better leadership than the revolution has given them," it concludes.

HOCKEY TRIAL.

SCRAPPY PLAY IN MATCH AT SOOKUNPOO YESTERDAY

Little outstanding form was shown by the players who took part in the third hockey trial held at Sookunpoo yesterday, when the team of Probables beat the Possibles by four goals to two. The match on the whole was scrappy, and revealed nothing which might be of assistance to the Selection Committee, the slippery state of the ground making good hockey a difficult task.

The Probables had the better team and gave a superior all-round display to their opponents. G. Singh opened the scoring from a pass, but when the interval arrived the Probables were two goals to one in arrears. They quickly equalised, however, and then took the lead, which they subsequently increased to 4-2.

Friendly Match

In a friendly game of hockey played yesterday afternoon at the Caroline Hill Ground, Radio Sports Club beat H.M.S. Veteran six goals to three. The home team fielded a fair side against the visitors, several regular players giving place to reserves.

For the winners Awtar Singh scored four goals and H. Singh two; Karmal Singh and J. Singh played a good game, rendering much assistance to the goal scorers.

tion in the Legislatures, we were equally careful to do nothing that would split off their community from the Hindu world.

EQUAL FOOTING.

"You yourself stated, in your letter of 11th March, that you were not against their representation in the Legislatures. Under the Government's scheme, the Depressed Classes will remain part of the Hindu community and will vote with the Hindu electorate on an equal footing, but for the first 20 years, while still remaining electorally a part of the Hindu community, they will receive, through a limited number of special constituencies, the means of safeguarding their rights and interests that we are convinced is necessary under present conditions. Where these constituencies are created, members of the Depressed Classes will not be deprived of their vote in the general Hindu constituencies, but will have two votes in order that their membership of the Hindu community should remain unimpaired. We deliberately decided against the creation of what you describe as a communal electorate for the Depressed Classes."

GANDHI ADAMANT.

Gandhi answered the Prime Minister in a letter dated September 10th in which he stated that

RUSSIAN GUARD'S
SUICIDE"UN SOUND MIND" THE VERDICT

Allegations of inconsiderate treatment by superior officers, contained in a letter left behind by D. V. Mikhailovsky a Russian Police guard, who on August 24 committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a service rifle in the Guards Office (converted from the old No. 7 Police Station at West Point), were found to be groundless at a Coroner's inquiry concluded before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. J. R. Brouwer (foreman), E.M.H. Castro, and Fung Yue-chung.

A verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind" was returned. Sub-Inspector O'Connor, who was summoned on the morning in question from his quarters on the first floor of the building, said that when he reached the ground floor, he saw several Russian guards grouped at the doorway leading to the large room which was the scene of the tragedy. On entering, he found Mikhailovsky lying on his back on a bed near a window at the west end of the room, fully dressed and wearing brown socks and shoes.

Witness attention was caught by a rifle which was lying between the man's legs with the muzzle only two inches from his chin. The magazine was empty and in order to take the weapon from the body witness had to remove the dead man's hands from off the stock. Witness pulled back the bolt and extracted an empty cartridge case.

Wound in Chin.

A large gaping wound was evident under the chin on the right side, while in line with it on the right side of the head above the forehead, was another opening. The right eye was swollen. At the head of the bed on the right side, on the floor, was a pool of congealed blood. On the wall just back of the dead man's head was a hole apparently made by a bullet, splinters of which were found embedded between the mortar of the brickwork.

The body was removed to the Mortuary after the arrival of Mr. William La Bart Sparrow, A.S.P. Lance Sergeant No. E. 6 then handed witness a piece of paper with two keys attached. "After I.S.E. 6 had translated, what was on the paper," said witness, "I went with him to his room, where I saw a suitcase, which was not locked, and which, on an examination, I found to contain, just inside on top of some clothing, a letter. It was gummed down, and addressed to I.S.E. 6. I handed it to E. 6 requesting him to open it. He did so, and found it to contain this letter and $25 in Hongkong banknotes. I then requested E. 6 to translate the letter, a copy of which translation is here produced."

Suicide's Record.

Sub-Inspector Portallion, in charge of the Guards Department for a period of two years and seven months, said he first came to know the deceased two days after the general arrival of the Russian guards from Shanghai on enlistment in the early part of 1930. They were quartered at the old Sailors Home, but later transferred over to their present quarters in the old No. 7 Police Station on the latter's removal to the Sailors Home.

These Russian guards were engaged for duty on Empress liners and B. and S. boats, and when ashore their duties were confined to waterfront searching. Mikhailovsky never came under his special attention for any reason, but in September 1930, he applied for sick leave, and when going into Hospital did not state the nature of his illness.

Referring to the man's record, Inspector Portallion stated that on three occasions during his two years of service, the man went into hospital, staying there on each occasion for less than two months. His official record was perfectly satisfactory except for a minor offence for which he was cautioned.

Discharged As Incurable.

Ordinarily, if Mikhailovsky had any application to make to the Government, such would have passed through witness's hands before being forwarded to the A.S.P. and the I.G.P. No such application was made by Mikhailovsky when he received his discharge on being invalided on August 22 last—two days prior to his suicide.

He was discharged from service, said witness, as an invalid and as incurable. For every completed year of service, the man discharged would receive an extra month's pay, and Mikhailovsky who had completed two years of service, received $100 as this extra remuneration.

He made no application to be sent to some other place than Shanghai, but had he done so, said witness, he would have been referred to a condition in his agreement

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Sent in the Bus

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—While riding on a bus to-day something happened which could hardly escape any notice, nor any decent person's, for that matter. It concerned a man who has evidently lost all claims of decency and all claims of a supreme example of modern civilization—a civilization of grab and keep.

It was during tiffin hour and the bus was packed with business men, school children and people of all descriptions. The bus slowed down and the person in question jumped on. At the same moment a passenger got up and was presumably on the point of offering the seat to the school children and ladies, when the man, thinking that the passenger was getting off, rushed at and took the seat. He, then, smoked his pipe in the perfect calm and serenity of a well-won battle.

The "gentleman's" manners would require some overhauling if the seat had been genuinely offered to a weaker sex. Under the present circumstances I am at a loss to describe him. If I had known the "gentleman" personally, I would have given him a piece of my mind gratis, but now I must leave him to the pricks of his own conscience if he has one.

THE CHINESE DRAGON.

This case was Shanghai. Had Mikhailovsky persisted in being sent to some other place, the matter would have to be referred to superior officers.

"I cannot understand," said witness, "why in his letter he said I tried to make his sickness worse."

Official's Consideration.

Witness went on to say that after his first discharge from hospital, and the question of his being invalided was raised, Mikhailovsky was brought by him before the Inspector General of Police, Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, when Mikhailovsky was kept on, and his application was favourably received by the official interviewed. Mr. Wolfe had then thought that Mikhailovsky might profit from a spell of sea-duty, in view of his ailment, and for four months afterwards, Mikhailovsky did regular ship duty.

It was stated that the $25 found in the suitcase represented all the money found in the suicide's belongings. At the close of the evidence, the Coroner in reviewing the facts said the case, so far as the actual occurrence went, was a very simple one. The deceased, as the jury had heard, must have shot himself in the manner described, by pointing the rifle just under his chin and pulling the trigger. The wound thus inflicted obviously caused his death.

Why He Did It.

The question remains of course why he did it. They had the medical record of the man and the evidence of the post-mortem examination, which showed that he was in a very advanced state of consumption. The medical report from the hospital had shown he was apparently incurable, and the surgeon thought he had not many years to live. That provided them with an explanation of his later acts. He knew he was incurable, and that he had no prospect of employment in Hongkong or elsewhere. In his later days, with the troublous times through which his country was passing, he appeared to have been unhappy.

The evidence disclosed by the inquiry showed that he must have contemplated suicide for some time—at any rate he got the bullet a considerable time before using it. Tuberculosis was presumably contracted sometime during 1930, or between May when he was medically examined on enlistment, and October or September of that year, when he went into hospital.

The jury had heard what the doctor said about the advanced state of the disease and the probability of its proving on the sufferer's mind. The peculiar circumstances of his country might have affected his mental outlook, and this together with consumption had depressed him, and this it appeared, very naturally caused him to commit suicide.

Complaints Groundless.

The complaints in the letter, as far as his Worship could make out, appeared to be groundless. His conditions of service showed that the Government had wholly carried out its contract with him. His record with the Police was good, and it was to be supposed that the tuberculosis coupled with the depressing circumstances of his life for the last 14 or 15 years must have preyed on his mind.

The Coroner: If you are satisfied that he died a suicide and that no one was to blame for it, you are justified in bringing in a verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind."

SUTCLIFFE IN A
NEW ROLE

194 OUT OF 292 IN 165
MINUTES

Extraordinary scoring marked the partnership of Sutcliffe and Leyland in the second stage of Yorkshire's return match with Essex at Scarborough. At one point four consecutive overs sent down by K. Farnes, the Cambridge fast bowler, yielded 75 runs, while, in all, six consecutive overs at one period—delivered by Farnes, O'Connor, and Nichols—produced 102 runs.

Sutcliffe, during this sensational cricket, raised his individual score from 100 to 182 in 20 minutes, and altogether the two Yorkshiremen put on 149 runs in 55 minutes, the rate of scoring for this memorable stand being something more than 162 runs an hour.

Going in second wicket down at 90 and sixth man out at 382, Sutcliffe actually scored 194 out of 292 in two hours and three-quarters, putting together what was at once his tenth innings of three figures this year and the 103rd of his career. He started off by making 51 in an hour and a quarter, reached his 100 fifty minutes later, and then hit away in such wonderful fashion that he actually increased his score from 100 to 194 in 40 minutes.

Naturally enough, his play, seeing the tremendous pace at which he piled on runs, was not free from fault. On the contrary, his innings was really memorable for the luck he enjoyed as well as for the rate of scoring. When 51 he offered a comparatively easy catch to Farnes at mid-off, and he was let off again at 68, while after passing his hundred he gave chances at 115, 137, and 181. Eventually caught just in front of the sight screen off a big drive, he had as his chief strokes three sixes and twenty 4's.

In the previous match between Yorkshire and Essex, Sutcliffe made 313, so his two innings against the eastern country this season yielded him 507 runs.

BEFORE THE FUN BEGAN.

ENGLAND'S
BAD DAY

U.S. CHAMPIONSHIP
DEBACLE

PUT OUT AT
SAME TIME

Forest Hills, Sept. 7.
The horde of foreign tennis stars who invaded the courts here for the U.S. national championships was turned back to-day by the defending Americans—all save one lone Frenchman.

That lone Frenchman was Henri Cochet of France, conceded last year as the world's No. 1 player, whose claim to that honour has been wobbling this year as a result of his elimination at Wimbledon and his defeat in the Davis Cup challenge round by Ellsworth Vines.

Cochet, if he is to take home the American title and avenge Vines' recent triumph must meet and conquer three of America's best, as the quarter-finals, semi-finals and finals are still waiting ahead of him.

To-day's play in the fourth round saw four able British players—Frederick Perry, Bunny Austin, Edward Avory and John Oliff—fall by the wayside. T. Kivabara, the only other foreigner left in the play, also was eliminated.

Stellar work on the part of the ranking American players cleared these and other able foreigners save Cochet from the courts before the quarter-finals was reached, a remarkable feat considering the caliber of those who were eliminated to-day and others who went before, including Jiroh Satoh of Japan and Marcel Bernard of France.

The surviving Americans, and their ranking after the 1931 season, were: Ellsworth Vines, No. 1; George Lott, Jr., No. 2; Frank X. Shields, No. 3; Clifford Sutter, No. 6; Sidney Wood, No. 7; Wilmer Allison, No. 9; Lester Stoecken, No. 15.

MAGNIFICENT COCHET.

Cochet ran into his first serious opposition of the tournament in the play to-day when he encountered John Van Ryn, U.S. No. 4 player. After three sets of superb tennis, two of which went to extra games, Cochet won, 7-5, 6-3, 8-6.

The Frenchman was all over the court, volleying magnificently and spiking Van Ryn's game effectively.

The routing of the four Britishers was sensational.

Sidney Wood was pitted against Britain's best, Frederick Perry, and conquered him after five sizzling sets, coming up from behind after losing the first two sets. The scores were, 3-6, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, 7-5.

After getting off to a poor start in the first two sets, Wood simply swamped the British star in the third and fourth sets, which he took by the love count. Perry rallied in the final set, but the American outlasted him.

Clifford Sutter of New Orleans swept through Bunny Austin, Britain's No. 2 performer, without great difficulty, winning one love set. The scores were 6-2, 6-0, 7-5.

OLIFF GOES.

Frank Shields, who slunked out in the Davis Cup play in Europe this year, seemed to be getting his old form back. He defeated John Oliff of England, winning after four sets, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Wilmer Allison, heavy duty member of the recent Davis Cup challenge round against France, disposed of Edward Avory of Britain, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

George Lott, Jr., found T. Kuwabara, lone Japanese survivor, a difficult opponent, but after dropping his first set the American got onto Kuwabara's game and won the next three. The scores were 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines, whom most fans expect to see meet Cochet in the finals, and Keith Gledhill, U.S. doubles champions, faced each other from opposite sides of the court in another noteworthy event. Vines gave his doubles partner little opportunity and won 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

Lester Stoecken of California, the new star on the American horizon, who created a surprise earlier in the meet when he eliminated Satoh of Japan, proved it wasn't a fluke by beating Gregory Mangin, U.S. indoor champion, 6-4, 8-0, 6-4.

UNDEFEATED.—Picture shows the South China Athletic tennis team which enjoyed a splendid season in the "B" Division of the Tennis League. They were undefeated, but being ordered to concede points to the C.R.C., had to rest content with the runners-up position.

In a friendly hockey match, the Radio Sports Club defeated a team from H.M.S. Veteran at Caroline Hill yesterday by 6 goals to 3.

The winners, though handicapped by having but nine players on view and minus the services of Gurabachan Singh, were nearly always in the ascendant and won with a fair amount of ease, though the navy attack required careful watching, being very virile and forceful in front of goal.

Awlar Singh (4) and Harbhajan Singh (2) netted for the Radio.

CONTEST TO BE EXTENDED?

London, Sept. 6.

New rules for the Davis Cup tennis competition may come into force next year whereby the contests would be spread over a period of two years and certain of the countries would be seeded.

The proposal was discussed at length at a meeting of the Davis Cup nations, here. Briefly, it envisages a preliminary competition among the European nations other than those which reached the semi-finals in the competition proper of any year. The four nations reaching the semi-finals of the preliminary competition would enter the competition proper in the following year together with the semi-finalists of the previous year and other non-European challengers.

The proposal was well received as indicated by the fact that only five nations voted against it. As the necessary two-thirds majority was not obtained however, the scheme is to be re-submitted for the consideration of the nations. The final and deciding votes on the matter are to be returned on or before January 29, 1933.

be her final attempt to win the title, as she is retiring from competitive golf after her return from America.

Miss Wilson, who is only 22, is generally recognised as Great Britain's foremost lady player.

ACIDITY THE CAUSE OF INDIGESTION

Any medical man will tell you that most cases of indigestion and allied stomach troubles are caused by excess acid in the stomach, which, unless quickly counteracted, may ultimately ruin the digestive organs. This acid makes the food in your stomach ferment and thus form gases which cause painful distension. The common-sense remedy for acidity is 'Bismarck' Magnesia, which instantly neutralises excess acid, prevents fermentation, and soothes, heals and strengthens the acid-inflamed stomach lining. Doctors recommend 'Bismarck' Magnesia because it never fails to give immediate relief by removing the cause of the trouble. You can get 'Bismarck' Magnesia at all chemists, and there is no better, quicker and surer remedy for digestive disorders.

Nothing else makes teeth so white as DOUBLE ACTION Cleansing

Listerine Tooth Paste, made by the makers of Listerine Antiseptic, contains special cleansing and polishing agents never before combined in any other dentifrice.

Amazing results are obtained especially when it is used with a scientifically designed Pro-phy-lac-tic

Tooth Brush.

The use of the two gives*double action cleansing.

The tufted end, notched bristle surface, and extra-resilient bristles of the Pro-phy-lac-tic reach between the teeth and behind the molars, allowing the wonderful cleansing agents of Listerine Tooth Paste to do their work most efficiently. Operating in perfect unison, the dentifrice and brush thoroughly clean every part of every tooth, massaging the margins of the gums, and producing a delightful feeling of cleanliness throughout the entire mouth.

Try double action cleansing. Notice yourself how swiftly it imparts a new brilliance to the teeth! Once you use double action cleansing you will never go back to ordinary dentifrices and unscientific tooth brushes.

IMPORTANT: Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brushes are always sold in sanitary yellow boxes; never loose. Listerine Tooth Paste is sold usually at considerably lower prices than other quality dentifrices. It should save you enough to pay for the Pro-phy-lac-tic Brushes you use.

CONTINUOUS HEADACHES

There are few ailments which are more distressing and lowering to the spirits and vitality than continuous nervous, neuralgic or sick headaches.

Strong sunshine and heat increase the distress. Relief by the use of aspirin and other drugs is only temporary and when their effect has worn off the pains return.

Nearly every victim of chronic headache is suffering from anaemia (blood impoverishment). Anaemic people's nerves are starved, their digestions are faulty, both of which can be contributory causes to the headaches.

Permanent relief can only be obtained by tonic treatment through the blood. A course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has proved effective in countless cases of this kind. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, oxygenize, enrich, increase and purify the blood, thereby directing treatment to the root cause of the trouble.

By this unique action Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable for a wide range of diseases of the blood and nerves, such as anaemia, stomach troubles, neurasthenia, weakness and depression, pallor and emaciation, premature ageing and loss of memory. All chemists and medicine dealers can supply you. Refuse substitutes and insist on this fifty-year-old, genuinely efficacious blood and nerve tonic.

ATTRACTION AT PENINSULA HOTEL THIS WEEK

The accomplished and versatile artists, Miss Tania Svetlanova and Mr. Alex Salnikoff, who are appearing every week-day night in the Roof Garden of the Peninsula Hotel during the dinner dance between 9 p.m. and midnight, in exhibition dances, (classical, acrobatic and farcical) continue to earn admiration and well deserved applause for their accomplished and clever display.

They are exhibiting three new features this week, namely "Fantasie Oriental", "Bolero Espagnol" and "Kitty Dance", which they performed for the first time to a large gathering of diners last Saturday night.

From next week-end, Saturday, September 17, these delightful performers will produce another complete change of programme.

I'm not going to be satisfied unless I see more of you soon. Drop in any time."

Cherry's answer was mumbled. She turned and hurried away, assuring herself that if she had stayed another moment her anger would have got the best of her. "I don't care how smart Brenda Vail is!" she stormed to herself. "I don't care how smart Brenda Vail is!" she stormed to herself. She doesn't have to talk to me as though I don't know a thing and she doesn't have to tell me how brilliant Dan is and what's for his good. I guess I know Dan as well as she does!"

Throughout the trip home Cherry's rage continued. It was not until she had reached the apartment, had dropped her packages and her hat to sit down and think things over calmly that the angry mood subsided. She reminded herself of the night drive only the week before and how ashamed she had been of her earlier jealousy.

"I won't be jealous!" Cherry told herself staunchly. "I won't!" Consequently when two nights later Dan told her Brenda Vail had invited them to a little dinner party Cherry begged off on grounds of a headache. She urged Dan so sweetly to go without her that he agreed.

KOWLOON THEFT SEQUEL

GOAL SENTENCE FOR RECEIVING

Sentence of six weeks' hard labour was passed on Wong Yim, an unemployed jeweller's assistant, by Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning in connection with the theft of a gold ring, a jade brooch and a fountain pen, the property of Mrs. Joyce Tetley, of No. 31 C, Nathan Road. Inspector Elston said on the night of September 7, the articles were left on Mrs. Tetley's dressing table in her bed-room, and later they were found to be missing. The next morning, defendant was arrested by a Chinese constable trying to raise more money on the ring which he had already pawned. On him was found a jade brooch which had been identified by Mrs. Tetley as one of the articles stolen from her dressing table.

After hearing the evidence, his Worship found the charge of theft not proved, but convicted the defendant on a charge of receiving stolen property.

BEGGAR PESTERS BANKER

"REGULAR NUISANCE" FINED

A Shanghai Chinese was fined $5, with the alternative of ten days' imprisonment, by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning for begging.

Evidence was given by Mr. P. Y. Lo, business manager of the Bank of China, to the effect that he was interviewed and pestered by the defendant, whom he had not previously known, for the cost of a passage to Shanghai.

The police stated that the man had been in the habit of soliciting free passages, and was "a regular nuisance."

INTERPORT BOWLS

BIG VICTORY FOR H.K. TEAM

LUSITANO BADLY BEATEN

(Our Own Correspondent).

Shanghai, Sept. 13. The Hongkong interport bowlers played their first match here yesterday, when they secured an overwhelming victory over the Lusitano Club, winning by 32 shots to 8. The losers only scored on six heads.

Hongkong fielded the following team:—H. Hampton, R. S. Nichol, B. W. Bradbury, and J. C. Brown (skip).

The game itself was not of a particularly high standard, owing to the heavy state of the green, and gave little indication of how good Hongkong are.

Bradbury and Nichol both played a steady game, while Brown showed himself to be a canny skip. Hampton, with the exception of two or three ends, could not get the green.

The Lusitano players, with the exception of Gomes, took the game too seriously, with the consequence that they fell badly.

SIX ON FIRST HEAD.

Hongkong made a fine beginning, taking six in the first end. Lusitano got a single in the next, then Hongkong scored two singles, and Lusitano followed up with two.

In the next four ends, Hongkong scored nine shots, Lusitano getting a two on the eleventh, at which stage Hongkong were leading by 17 to 5.

From the twelfth to the seventeenth, Hongkong piled on no fewer than fourteen further shots, Lusitano getting a single on the eighteenth.

The next head went to Hongkong, who secured a single, and Lusitano won the twentieth and twenty-first heads with singles.

TO-DAY'S GAME.

This afternoon, the Hongkong players will meet the Lawn Bowls Club in a friendly, Hongkong to SYMPHONIC CONCERT.

HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENT AT PENINSULA HOTEL

The popularity of the Peninsula Hotel symphonic concerts was particularly in evidence by the record attendance last Sunday night: the seating accommodation was full to the absolute limit, well over 600 being present, and every item of the well selected programme, without exception, was accorded most deservedly generous and hearty tributes of appreciation.

No doubt, however, the ultra attraction, which was most inspiring, was the group of masterpieces comprising the second part. These were The "Unfinished Symphony" (Dramatic) by Schubert, a British Fantasia "Cavalcade" by Noel Coward, and the grand descriptive overture "1812" by Tchaikowsky, which were rendered by a combined orchestra of selected musicians from the bands of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels Ltd., and the 1st. Bn. the South Wales Borderers, under the able conductorship of Mr. J. L. Gecks. Prolonged applause demanded an encore, which was responded to with Wagner's "Albumbliatt" (Album Leaf).

This section was an exceptionally pleasant feature, and on the whole the entertainment was of a very high order and afforded an enjoyable evening to the large gathering present.
